

Congress Not Likely to End Session Before Late in August

Deadlocks Show Signs of Breaking on Major Issues
COURT IS PROBLEM
Hints of Compromise on Roosevelt Plan are Being Heard

Washington—(AP)—House Democratic leaders agreed with President Roosevelt today on a seven-point preferential legislative program for action this session, headed by the judicial and executive reorganization proposals.

Other measures which Representative Bayburn of Texas, majority floor leader, said would be pushed for final disposition before adjournment were:

Extension of nuisance taxes and prevention of tax dodging, farm tenancy, low-cost housing, wages and hours legislation, and conservation planning and power authorities.

With Rayburn at the White House conference were Speaker Bankhead and Representative Vinson (D-Ky.), a member of the ways and means committee.

Washington—(AP)—Deadlocks on several major legislative issues are beginning to break, leaders said today, following hints of compromise on the Roosevelt court bill.

"That bill is the key to the situation," said Senator Harrison (D-Miss.), surveying the problems facing congress at the start of its sixth month.

Although the outcome of the court battle was regarded as uncertain by many legislators, they agreed that disagreements over the proposed tax inquiry, farm tenancy aids, and relief funds gradually were being settled.

Some issues—such as government reorganization and regional planning—remained highly controversial. Consequently few members expected adjournment before late August.

The principal bills and the status of each in brief:

Relief—The house this week voted $1,500,000,000 for the year beginning July 1, removing "earmarking" provisions after President Roosevelt made concessions for free use of the FWA funds. Economy advocates will seek to reduce the amount in the senate next week.

Wage-Hour Bill
Wages and hours—Hearings are being held on the president's request to establish minimum and maximum standards, and to ban child labor in interstate industries. Some advisers of the president say this bill may get precedence over the court bill.

Government reorganization—A senate committee may recommend an all-inclusive bill almost any day. A house committee is drafting several bills intended to meet opposition is predicted, especially to a proposal to curtail the comptroller general's power.

Taxes—Congressional investigation of tax avoidance is intended as a preliminary to legislation closing loopholes. The house is expected to vote for the inquiry next week, leaders having settled argument over its procedure.

Farm—The farm surplus control and price stabilization bill faces opposition which may result in deferment until next session. A bill to aid tenant farmers is scheduled for consideration first, authorizing expenditure of $10,000,000 in the coming year.

Housing Proposal
Housing—The Wagner proposal for an extensive slum clearance program is on the administration "desirable" list. Difficulties over the method of financing are being ironed out.

Flood control and power—Appropriations for many authorized flood control projects have been proposed. The president recommended that projects heretofore executed on the basis of regional plans embracing conservation, irrigation, power development. Action appears likely to go over until 1938. In five months congress has enacted several major measures.

These include renewal of the president's authority to revalue the gold dollar, adoption of the "cash and carry" neutrality policy, extension of the reciprocal tariff trading act and of the reconstruction finance corporation establishment of control over the soft coal industry and permission for supreme court justices to retire on full pay at 70.

STUDIES PROBLEMS

President Roosevelt's court reorganization bill is "the key to the situation," Senator Pat Harrison (above) of Mississippi said today as leaders at Washington expressed belief that deadlocks on several legislative issues are beginning to break. Duchess Wallis Makes Tour of Austrian Castle

Orders Numerous Goggles Removed to Attics Of Ancient Building

Noetsch, Austria—(AP)—The duchess of Windsor put on a simple figured house dress and toured the "haunted" rooms of Wasserleuburg castle today with a happily critical eye.

As she poked about this storied place that is her honeymoon home, a host of spectral knock-knocks, dust-gatherers all, went promptly out. She consigned them to an exile in the lofty attics on just one look.

But on the whole she seemed to like the place her husband picked out. At times she seemed even excited, the servants said.

The duke and the duchess, late in arriving last night, were late in getting up. Then Wallis, in her figured house dress, received the housekeeper, talked about meals, and started her all-seeing tour of inspection.

Wasserleuburg, she found, is a place of many things from many periods.

"Lady Bluebeard"
It is crammed with four-poster beds, heavily upholstered. There are paintings of all sizes and quality. There are Venetian lamps and animal pelt and tiled stoves, which are the Austrians' conception of luxury.

For the time being, the duchess granted a stay of execution to a picture of the "Lady Bluebeard" who lived in the castle four centuries ago, and the eerie gallery of portraits of her six husbands.

This grim sixteenth century chateau of the castle was one Anna Neumann. Her husbands died with clock-like regularity after she married them. Their bones lie under the castle floor.

Edward only laughs at this legend. The duchess, it was stated, had not decided what to do with the seven pictures, if anything.

It seemed the most peaceful abode that Edward of Windsor has ever had. No visitors were expected.

Cards Circulated For Ford Union

'Ford Brotherhood of America' Rival of United Auto Workers

Detroit—(AP)—Circulation of membership cards in the "Ford Brotherhood of America" as a rival of the United Automobile Workers of America was revealed today.

The existence of such an organization became known, however, only after it was reported that the distribution of the membership application had stopped.

No explanation was made and company officials declined to discuss the brotherhood.

A strike in three Chrysler plants here was settled late yesterday, but a Detroit Packard factory and two General Motors units in Pontiac were closed because of labor troubles. They do not operate normally on Saturday.

A grand jury investigating a fight in which 18 U. A. W. members were hurt outside the big Ford plant in Dearborn May 26 also devoted some time to questioning witnesses concerning an alleged shipment of tear gas and gas masks to a steel mill here.

We understand that this new union meets all requirements of the Wagner act, a man who withheld his name said concerning the Ford brotherhood. "I don't know how the cards could be circulated unless it had official approval."

Reich Priests Told to Reply To Goebbels

Pastors in Berlin Diocese To Read Answers From Pulpit
EXACT DATA SOUGHT

Priests are instructed to read statement at services

Berlin—(AP)—Priests in the Berlin diocese received orders today to answer from their pulpits. Propaganda Minister Paul Joseph Goebbels' charge that the wave of German Catholic immorality trials is the worst in history.

Less than one-fourth of 1 per cent of the German Catholic clergy are on trial on the immorality charges, the pastors will read from a church announcement during holy mass services tomorrow.

All received this statement with instructions that it be read to their congregations.

The Reich's propaganda minister, May 28 in Deutschland hall, claimed, in connection with the immorality trials, that it was not a general moral degeneration such as has not happened in the entire cultural history of mankind to such an appalling extent.

"There could be no doubt, the Reich's minister said, but that the thousands of cases which came to the knowledge of the justice department constituted only a fraction of the true extent of the moral depravity and was symptomatic of general moral corruption."

Ask Exact Information
We have requested all German dioceses to supply exact information on how many priests and how many members of lay congregations are involved in the immorality trials.

"In Germany there are more than 100,000 male and female members of lay congregations. How many of them have been dragged in to the present trials could not be determined exactly."

"As regards the priests, however, information from all German dioceses indicates that of 21,461 Catholic priests, 49 are involved in the present wave of trials against priests and members of the orders. Of these, 21 have been found guilty and the cases of 28 still are pending."

Of priests belonging to orders, nine are involved, among whom only one has been found guilty and the cases of the eight others still are pending.

"Hence, of a total of 25,535 priests, only 58 are involved. That is less than one fourth of 1 per cent, or one priest in every 500."

The trials have involved both priests and lay brothers.

Search Wreckage For Two Bodies

Hunt for Remains of Woman, Child Reported Victims of Bus Tragedy

Redding, Calif.—(AP)—Authorities searched burned wreckage today for a woman and little girl reported aboard a passenger bus which crashed and burst into flames in a mountain crash and fire.

The possible death toll again was set at nine after R. C. Bennett, driver of another bus, declared positively the woman and child transferred from his bus to the ill-fated stage here yesterday.

And save the door behind them, he said, the bus when it pulled out, "I declared Bennett.

Coroner Roy S. Duggins said he was certain the charred bodies of known victims were all men.

He expressed belief that a heart attack suffered by the driver probably was the cause of the accident.

Everyone aboard the bus, bound from Sacramento, Calif., Portland, Ore., was killed about dawn yesterday when it failed to round a curve.

Driver Mortimer A. Wilson, 37, of Sacramento, perished with his passengers. Coroner Duggins, set an inquest tentatively for Tuesday.

Authorities said the names of three passengers tentatively had been established as Alfred Vesell, 36, Marysville, Negro, A. C. Shafer of Ray, Colo., and Tim Neely of Neville, a lumberjack.

Mystery of Abandoned Automobile Is Solved
Seattle—(AP)—The mystery of an abandoned bullet-riddled and blood-stained automobile bearing Wisconsin license plates was a mystery no longer today.

Police said they had dropped their investigation when the owner, Miss Florence Thornton, who gave her address as Milwaukee, informed them the machine had been in a duly reported accident.

Inquiry, they said, disclosed that small boys had used the parked automobile as a target for air guns. The "blood stains" proved to be berry juice. The wrecked automobile was found Wednesday.

Artillery Is Used to Pound Bilbao's Line

Final Defenses of Basque Capital Target of Insurgent Shells
FIGHT ON NEW FRONT

French Reports Say Bomb Used to Kill General Emilio Mola

By the Associated Press
Insurgent artillery pounded Bilbao's "El Gallo" line, the besieged Basque capital's last-ditch line of concrete trenches, today.

Sections of insurgent generalissimo's line of 800 artillery pieces opened the bombardment while unconfirmed French border reports said a "time bomb" caused the plane crash Thursday that killed Insurgent General Emilio Mola and four of his officers.

The rumors, although without any substantiation, were persistent.

Fighting on a new front, at the side door to Madrid, flared into a major battle.

Government machine gun crews were said to have beaten back an insurgent counter-offensive of combined infantry, artillery and air forces at La Granja, about 33 miles northwest of the capital.

Bombardment
Insurgent warplanes, trying to hold General Jose Mola's forces from Segovia, about six miles north in the Guadarama sector above Madrid, bombarded the government entrenchments as the insurgent foot troops went "over the top."

The government machine gunners withheld their fire until the insurgent wave came close, then halted the wavering line with a spray of fire.

International tension relaxed after the Spanish government aerial bombardment of Germany's pocket battleship Deutschland and the Reich's retaliatory cannonade of Almeria. French and British diplomats pressed anew to isolate the civil war.

Their main purpose was to promote German and Italian interest in the recall of foreign troops from Spain. That would simplify the problem of the international non-intervention committee's naval patrol and eliminate one source of incidents.

French Proposals
To win Germany and Italy back to the "hands off Spain" committee with guarantees of safety for neutral warships, France urged:

1. That all 27 nations provide ships for the patrol instead of the four-power fleet—France, Great Britain, Italy and Germany—in the original plan.
2. That neutral observers be placed aboard each patrol ship to fix responsibility for the bombing of the Deutschland.

The Madrid-Valencia government threatened to "go to terror" against ships for launching air-raids on insurgent-held cities in retaliation for insurgent air raids on government-held cities.

Jose Giral Periera, Valencia government foreign minister, declared the Spanish republic held the neutrality committee partly responsible for the bombardment of Almeria.

Chicago—(AP)—President Robert M. Hutchins of the University of Chicago announced today the school had received a gift of $50,000 from Charles R. Walgreen, chain drug store operator, who less than two years ago criticized the university for "red" activities and caused his niece, Lucille Norton, to cancel her enrollment.

Recover Body in Mine Accident
Hope Abandoned for Life Of Second Miner Entombed in Minnesota

Ely, Minn.—(AP)—John Kavach, Jr., today identified as that of his father the body of one of two miners recovered from the Pioneer "A" mine here where they were buried by a caving 1,500 feet underground last night.

Mine officials previously announced the body was that of Tony Kramer. A fresh crew of rescue workers continued efforts to reach Kramer's body after hope of finding him alive was given up.

Ely, Minn.—(AP)—B. O. Strachan, superintendent of the Pioneer "A" iron mine, this morning announced recovery of the body of Tony Kramer, one of two miners trapped 1,500 feet underground in a caving last night.

Hope has been abandoned, Strachan said, for the life of John Kavach, the second miner entombed.

"He apparently is buried deeper than was Kramer," Strachan said.

E. C. Jones, assistant superintendent of the Ely district for the Oliver Mining company which operated the shaft, said the position of Kramer's body indicated he was mounting a ladder to the mine opening when tons of ore tumbled upon him.

Rescue crews were forced to work at a slow pace due to wet conditions and the danger of another cave-in. The east side of the mine where the men were working was termed "very wet" with the formation described as heavy, muddy ore.

Men sent down to the level began to construct what miners term a "flat raise." This is a small tunnel made of timber which is extended into the slide as the muddy ore is removed.

Write Orders Pickets Disarmed; Lumberjack Strike Is Nearing End

Michigan Official Sees Conclusion by Nightfall
STATE POLICE ALERT

Lumberjack Strike Chairman Accused Of Inciting Riot

Munising, Mich.—(AP)—Two hours after the chairman of a lumberjacks' strike committee was arrested on a charge of inciting a riot, Deputy State Labor Commissioner Joseph Ashmore announced today the strike probably would end by nightfall.

Ashmore said representatives of the Sawmill and Lumber Workers' union had agreed to his proposal that the 6,000 strikers return to work.

The deputy commissioner said union leaders promised they would call a general meeting of the strikers at 2 o'clock p. m. for a vote on the recommendation that they return to work.

The announcement allayed fears of a march by the strikers on the Alger county courthouse and of a renewal of rioting at the Newberry Lumber and Chemical Co. plant, where one striker fell dead of exhaustion during a fight yesterday.

A dozen state police, with riot equipment, were on guard here.

Leader Arrested
Two state policemen arrested Joe Liss, chairman of the strike committee, on a Munising street at 9 a. m. today. A warrant issued by a justice of the peace charges him with conspiracy to incite a riot.

Also in custody was Liss' lieutenant, David Le Clair, who called himself "double-breasted Joe," as he led groups of strikers in raids to close lumber camps throughout the upper peninsula. There was no formal charge against Le Clair.

While Liss was being taken to jail in a state police automobile, Henry Paul of Duluth, attorney for the union, appeared at the office of the justice who issued the warrant. Sheriff Louis Pelletier and Prosecutor Richard E. O'Brien refused him admittance and advised him to leave town.

The same advice was given to Luke Raik, president of the Ironwood local to which the strikers belong. Paul and Raik, with little argument, entered Paul's automobile and drove out of town. They were escorted to the town limits by deputies.

The strikers, threatening an attack on the courthouse here, demanded assurance from state authorities that their families would be cared for while their strike was in progress.

Other state police were on guard at Newberry against any attempt by strikers to carry out a threat to "take the town apart," in retaliation for the defeat they suffered in yesterday's clash with non-union men.

Spike, the Dog That Accidents Couldn't Kill, Dies of Old Age

Court Acts but Steel Strikers Say They'll Keep Lines
DRIVEN OFF BRIDGE

Youngstown, Ohio—(AP)—Republic Steel Corp. obtained a court order in an effort to disarm pickets and keep them from interfering with access to its strikebound Warren and Niles plants, shortly after the Steel Workers' Organizing Committee had declared it would not permit its picket lines to be broken, "cost what it may."

Judge Lynn B. Griffith, in common pleas court at nearby Warren, issued an alternative writ to curb picketing tactics and to stop pickets from carrying clubs or other weapons. He ordered the pickets and their leaders to comply with the order or show cause next Thursday.

A few hours earlier, police and sheriff's deputies had driven a crowd of several hundred pickets from a bridge adjoining the Youngstown Sheet and Tube Co. after a box car of food had been run into the plants. This led John Mayo, S. W. O. C. leader here, to advise Governor Martin L. Davey "the pickets will no longer permit their lines to be broken, cost what it may."

Pickets in the C. I. O. Steel Workers' Organizing Committee's strike against Sheet and Tube and two other leading producers, apparently taken by surprise, gathered around the bridge.

Sheriff Ralph E. Elser and suburban Struthers police quickly moved at the railroad spur and forced the pickets to retreat without firing a shot.

A short time later, men using acetylene torches cut the rails leading into the sprawling, two-mile long mill of the nation's fourth-largest steel producer, independent of the United States Steel Corp.

Tension Grows
"I shall use every effort available to protect lives and property," the sheriff declared as tension increased in this Mahoning valley section in the seven-state strike called to ward Sheet and Tube from Sheet and Tube, Republic Steel Corp., Inland Steel Corp.

The sheriff and his deputies arrived about the time the single box car was run into the closed mills where maintenance men have been since the strike which made more than 70,000 workers idle started ten days ago. Sheet and Tube has constantly stated it would not attempt to operate in face of the picket blockade.

He and one force of deputies and police were stationed at the bridge over which the food passed, and another group blockaded with four automobiles a highway leading into the grounds. The pickets gathered quickly and were forced back by the show of arms.

Use Armed Truck
Sheriff Elser said he was called by Struthers police and took the action "to prevent violence." He and part of the deputies drove to the scene in a heavily-armed motor truck.

Meanwhile, quiet remained in other sectors of the Great Lakes area strike front as S. W. O. C. leaders concerned themselves with the "strike or starve" blockade tactic while awaiting Governor Martin L. Davey's next move to bring the embattled forces "a little closer together."

Philipp Murray, Scotch-born chairman of the S. W. O. C. and chief strategist of John L. Lewis' campaign to win, signed bargaining contracts with Republic Steel Corp., Youngstown Sheet and Tube and Inland Steel Corp., returned to his Pittsburgh headquarters after a peace conference in Columbus with Governor Davey.

The result of the conference was a secret guarded closely by both Murray and the governor.

The S. W. O. C.'s flanking movement to tie up ore mine supplies of the struck corporations by unionizing several thousand ore miners in northern Minnesota and Michigan, was regarded as definitely underway.

Family Overcome by Gas but Will Recover
Mr. and Mrs. Wilbur Froelich and their two daughters, Dorothy Jean, 2, and Sylvia Marie, 10, months, were overcome by what is believed to have been carbon monoxide gas from an oil stove in their second floor apartment at 1033 W. Eighth street about 2 o'clock this afternoon. All four were taken to St. Elizabeth hospital where they are expected to recover.

Froelich summoned a physician when one of his daughters appeared to be ill and when the doctor arrived he found the child unconscious and the other members of the family affected by the gas. The physician himself was affected while he was moving the family out of the apartment to safety.

Separate Synod Is Organized by Presbyterian Group
Philadelphia—(AP)—The Bible Presbyterian synod was formed by 14 ministers and 3 elders who separated from the Presbyterian Church of America at the close of its third general assembly.

Although a statement issued last night by the 17 members did not mention the liquor question, the break came after a two-day debate over total abstinence.

The group said it represented the presbyteries of Chicago, Wisconsin, California and the Northwest.

The statement attributed the formation of a new synod to the departure of the Presbyterian Church of America from the historic position of American Presbyterianism.

Police Rout Pickets as Food Is Run Into Plant

Heartwood Vital Factor in Life Of Fence Posts

Forest Products Laboratory Announces Findings
On Wood Qualities

The amount and kind of heartwood determines how long a fence post will last, a report to R. C. Swanson, county agent, based on findings at the Forest Products Laboratory, Madison, shows.

Such trees as the Osage orange, cedar, black locust, or chestnut make good fence posts because they have plenty of durable heartwood. Douglas fir and southern yellow pine make fairly good posts but the heartwood is not so lasting. On the other hand, the amount of heartwood in the cottonwood, basswood, spruce, and hemlock is not important as neither sapwood nor heartwood is lasting. They make poor posts either split or round.

From a practical standpoint an untreated split post may be better than an untreated round post. If the round post has a great deal of sapwood around the heartwood, then the staples may not reach the heartwood. Split posts may be set so that the staples may be driven directly into the heartwood where they will hold long after the sapwood has rotted away.

When a post is treated with a preservative, such as creosote, then the round post is best, with the exception of the red oak. The heartwood of other trees, especially white oak, red gum, Douglas fir, and southern yellow pine, will not absorb much of the preservative even under high pressure, although the softer sapwood readily absorbs the protective creosote. Either the heartwood or sapwood of the red oak absorbs the preservative.

Hayes, rector of the American College at Rome, at left. Al was received by Pope Pius at the summer Vatican. He said he was speechless at Rome's wonders.

Frick Used Wrong Methods In Dean Case, Pegler Says

BY WESTBROOK PEGLER

New York—Baseball men generally do not keep abreast of affairs outside their own business, but it is hard to believe that anyone in the United States lives so deep in the past as Ford Frick, the president of the National League, which is a combination of business firms.

He was judge, jury and complaining witness in one, and his verdict was that Dean must sign a humiliating apology dictated by Frick himself or turn in his suit. Refusing to sign, Dean was ruled out, and he will lose pay until Mr. Frick decides that he has been punished sufficiently. The term, therefore, depends on how deeply Mr. Frick was hurt by the affront to his dignity and honor.

This occurs in a business which calls itself the American national game and directs its appeal to a public which has pretty generally indorsed collective bargaining and condemned autocratic and brutal treatment of employees by employers.

Of course, these baseball cases are trivial, and a man who gets $25,000 a year for playing a game does not make a very tragic martyr even when he is imposed upon. And Dean is even less pathetic, because he recently was accused of throwing his hard one dead at the skulls of the hitters in a game between the Cardinals and the Giants. A few days later, in the other major league, Mickey Cochrane was beamed accidentally and taken to a hospital with a broken head, and the resentment against Dean increased.

However, Mr. Frick did not punish Dizzy for conduct which might have been fatal. The suspension was based on reports that Dizzy publicly described Mr. Frick as a crook.

Frick could have found remedy in regular courts. Now, if Mr. Frick can prove that Dizzy called him a crook and prove that he is not a crook, which shouldn't be difficult, he can find his remedy in the regular courts.

But, instead, he took the old-fashioned baseball short cut and tried the case himself. The result is a much worse affront to justice and public sentiment than Dizzy offered when he threw his hard one at the Giants—if he did.

As to character, Dizzy has his virtues and his faults. Obstreperous he is, to be sure, boastful, erratic and a poor sportsman in some matters. But he is or has been a great pitcher; he was personally earned vast amounts of money for his country; he has worked overtime at the risk of killing his arm and losing his livelihood, and he once was knocked flat by a thrown ball while serving as pinch-runner in a world series. In this role he was a volunteer, and the service in which he was hurt was above and beyond the call of a pitcher's duty.

Taking him as he is, there is more deserving of public sympathy than his employers, who have been known to blacklist men for strictly temperamental reasons and drive them out of their profession by silent agreement.

Baseball Players Have No Bargaining Power
No works under a system of employment which not only denies the right of collective bargaining, but, once a man has signed his first papers, thereafter allows him no right to bargain at all. Under the terms of the standard baseball contract the player must work for any employer who buys him at the employer's own price and waive his right to a fair, impartial trial in cases involving his money, as Mr. Frick's sentence shows.

He is subject to house rules and regulations controlling his conduct in his leisure time, and, theoretically at least, he has no more human rights than the most degraded slave-cropper. Actually, of course, he fares pretty well but only by the generosity of his owners.

The terms of employment in professional baseball are such that you would think Mr. Frick, as head of the National league, would be afraid to flout public sentiment as he has done in this case. But perhaps, being a baseball man, Mr. Frick doesn't realize what goes on in labor and industry these days.

Apparently they don't get around much intellectually outside their own business.

For purposes of propaganda, organized baseball presents a tempting opportunity to organized labor. A player's union died at birth some years ago, but today a player's union could enlist the support of organized labor and astonish Mr. Frick and the chain store proprietors with picket lines and a terrible boycott.

Mr. Frick ought to read the papers.

Lawrence Scores Roosevelt Attack On Court Vacation

Writer Points to President's Frequent Absences From Office

BY DAVID LAWRENCE
Washington—President Roosevelt has been away from his desk in Washington 672 days, or 42 per cent of the time since he took the oath of office more than four years ago.

Notwithstanding this record of absence, which includes an out-of-town record of 41 consecutive days on a trip to Hawaii, Mr. Roosevelt has seen fit to attack the members of the supreme court of the United States for taking their customary recess of the court over the summer months.

Mr. Roosevelt told the assembled press correspondents this week that he had looked up the statute and found that the supreme court was not required to recess on June 2 and that the justices could have stayed in session if they liked. The president then proceeded to recite several instances in which he believed serious harm had been done by the court's recess.

If anybody had been so inclined, he could have made an even greater list of items on which government action has been delayed due to the president's frequent absences from the national capital, and likewise one might criticize congress for venturing to adjourn all when there are so many items of legislation on its calendar.

The fact that the judicial branch of the government left a few cases to be argued in the autumn term is not unusual, but it is most unprecedented for the head of the executive branch of the government to tell the judicial branch of the government how to do its work and to boss it around. In Germany, Chancellor Hitler orders the courts around and tells them, in effect, how to decide cases.

President Dissatisfied
The president has indicated that he is dissatisfied with the record of the supreme court in the session just closed because, while it did decide all the major cases in favor of the New Deal, it had the temerity to adjourn without hearing some of the cases which reached it a week or two prior to the adjournment time that has been for decades the regular time for recess.

As a matter of fact, the president has been grossly misinformed if he thinks the denial by the supreme court of a petition for review of the TVA case is actually a delay that works against the TVA. It is exactly the reverse. Had the supreme court granted a review, this step would have delayed the hearing of the entire case on its merits in the lower courts for another six months. As it was, the supreme court, in effect, concurred in the judgment of the circuit court of appeals in Cincinnati, which lifted Judge Gore's injunction. Thus the TVA is free to go ahead with new construction.

Just why the TVA counsel appealed from the Cincinnati decision to get a ruling in a technical point, which, had it been granted, would have caused more delay, is a mystery to many lawyers hereabouts.

Need For Deliberation
As for the refusal of the supreme court to speed up consideration of the utility cases involving indirectly a test of the "death sentence" for holding companies, this is a subject touching a $12,000,000,000 industry and the supreme court just thought it would be wiser to have the issue tried in the circuit court of appeals instead of skipping that particular step in the normal procedure. Mr. Roosevelt may be in a hurry to see the investments of many millions of citizens confiscated, but the supreme court has the old-fashioned idea that justice demands deliberation, and certainly that people must not be allowed to think their rights are being taken from them by a deviation from the regular procedure. If the "death sentence" is to be administered some day, the supreme court evidently thinks the opportunity to perform the last rites for investors and management should not be denied the sinners.

On the subject of the actual work done by the supreme court, Mr. Roosevelt indicates that, while vacations are perfectly natural, they should not be taken at this time. He, on the other hand, consulted only the tarpon in the Caribbean when he decided to leave Washington in the midst of one of the most important legislative sessions in the history of the republic.

Work Long Hours
The supreme court justices work hard. They are at their labors eight hours or more a day and they work at least six days a week. They work while the 40-hour week is to be arranged for workmen generally, the court is not to be included in the proposed legislative arrangement for a maximum of 40 hours.

But the four summer months are not all spent in vacation. Justice Stone, in an address before the American Bar association, discussing the work of the court, said: "Of course, so heavy a burden of work could not have been disposed of in so brief a time if all the judges had not spent some of the summer in examining the accumulations of application for certiorari."

These applications for review are so numerous that they have to be sifted by each of the members of the court during the summer, and, by the time the court reconvenes, it hands down a pile of orders and decrees.

Strain Is Heavy
Mr. Roosevelt is right when he says the hearings and oral argument of cases actually is adjourned during the four months between June and October, but, to get a rest, the court cannot take fishing trips in the middle of its term or go to Georgia at Thanksgiving for a month, or go off to South America on a voyage or do any of the many things which a tolerant and indulgent nation has permitted not only Mr. Roosevelt but other presidents to do while in office. The work of the supreme court is an almost superhuman task of concentration on multifarious detail and constant reading. The strain on the eyes alone would warrant a 4-month respite from the reading of briefs.

Mr. Roosevelt's attacks on the supreme court have come to be recognized as directly related, but the impression being made on capitol hill is that he is petulantly carrying on a persecution because the members of the court have not decided every little petition in his favor. At the White House, the theory is that the king can do no wrong, but the members of the supreme court hold at least once in a while the government lawyers might be wrong. The president's outburst will lose votes for him on his court bill.

Financial Expert Gives Advice to June Graduates

Roger Babson Tells How to 'Cash in on Your Diploma'

BY ROGER W. BABSON

Babson Park, Mass.—I have some good news for June graduates and their parents.—Statistics show that this year's seniors are in far greater demand than were last year's graduates. A survey of over fifty colleges shows that fewer A. B. and B. S. degreeholders will be forced to take post-graduate courses in C. C. C. this year! Eighty per cent of the placement directors report that there are many more jobs today than in 1936. The real news, however, is that this year not only the best students but also the lower-ranking cap-and-gown wearers are being picked up by corporations.

More encouraging still is the fact that starting salaries are reported from $100 to $300 higher than last year on an annual basis. Those industries showing the most activity at present are taking the largest percentage of the graduates. Technical school students are particularly wanted. Sales jobs continue to account for many of the positions offered, but this June more students are finding "inside" jobs. This first real demand since 1930 for promising seniors is just another indication of the tremendous improvement in business!

My real message today, however, is not simply these good reports on jobs for graduates. What I really want to answer is an often-heard comment that there are not the same opportunities for young men and women today that there were thirty years ago. This same chronic complaint was in vogue when I graduated from M. I. T. in 1898. Intelligent, hard-working, clean-living young people can go just as far and just as fast today as they ever could. If anything, progress is easier and more rapid now than it was then. If the 1937 crop of graduates follow the same basic principles that their fathers followed in making a success of their businesses and professions, they will be successful.

Those who feel that the opportunities of forty years ago are gone base their belief on the fact that the pioneer days have passed into history. The last geographical frontier has disappeared; but our pioneering days are far from over. There are vast territories yet to conquer in the production, research, distribution and social relations fields. Let's briefly survey each of these.

(1) While the standard of living in the United States and Canada is the highest in the world, our production methods are still lagging. There are hundreds of different ways in which industrial costs can be cut. Economy-producing ideas will still pay you big dividends.

(2) The scientific age is only in its infancy. Modern science is giving mankind, for the first time in all history, a method of securing more products for the individual without forcing the individual to steal them from someone else. New products and new processes are being put on the market every day. Opportunities in research are limitless.

(3) So long as distribution costs represent fifty per cent of the delivered price of a product, the possibilities of salesmanship are obvious. The young man who has sales ideas and ability can go further in any organization today than was ever the case.

(4) Development of our business machine is far ahead of the development of our human machine. The labor trends of today mean that the personnel managers of tomorrow will be just as busy as the factory superintendents, the research experts and the sales executives.

I am optimistic on the potentialities of the United States and Canada. Both have vast natural resources, tremendous supplies of manpower and millions of acres of fertile land. There is no reason to be pessimistic if we will develop our Christian character along with our material resources. I disagree with those who claim that America's opportunities are exhausted. If you June graduates have the vision, the intelligence, the courage and the CHARACTER of your fathers, you have nothing to fear. But do not follow the crowd. Be a pioneer. Go to the fastest growing sections of the country. Cut new paths in industry, science, distribution or social relations.

I do not think that it makes much difference what vocation you pick so long as you are a trail-blazer of some kind. The small, specialty business where the competition is not too highly developed is probably the best field today. In the keenly competitive mass-production industries, profits will be skimmed as soon as they rise to the surface. In the smaller, newer specialty businesses, the growth trend is still sharply upward. However, if you go into the mass-production industries, your best bet is with a concern which makes or sells quality products. A quality business, no matter how stiff the competition, can survive if it is managed with brains and ability.

While you are thumbing over the possibilities and trying to pick your life-job do not overlook the public administration field. Today there is scarcely a phase of business and industry that the government does not contract. If government in its new role as industrial umpire is to keep the American standard of living rising, then the calibre of our public officials must be improved. Harvard University has recognized this necessity in the founding of a new graduate school of public administration which will train young men for public administration jobs. If you are looking for opportunities, here is a vast new field just opening up. Trained, intelligent, "career" men will find greater security and demand for their services as the years go by.

I have watched personally for over thirty years the progress of young people. My observation is that those who deserve to succeed do succeed. So I say to the graduates of June 1937: If you go into industry with the right attitude, if you have taken seriously your courses of instruction, if you have learned how to work hard and conscientiously, if you are honest, public-minded and practice the Golden Rule, you cannot help but succeed!

An Announcement from Thiede Good Clothes

Due to unforeseen reasons the completion of our new store front will be delayed a week and we regret to be obliged to make such announcement.

We do not regret the delay for our own sake, because, after all, we might better use an extra week and have the new front just as it ought to be.

We do regret, tho', the extra inconvenience to you that this week's delay will make necessary. You folks have been so fine about favoring us during our remodeling, and we do not want you to be inconvenienced longer than is absolutely necessary.

We will continue however to pay you for all the inconvenience we are causing. Many say it isn't necessary, but we want to show our appreciation of your continued patronage and know of no better way to show this appreciation than to pay you 10c for every dollar you spend here.

Many who are needing clothes soon or later are purchasing these clothes now. The saving of $3.50 on a $35.00 suit is worth coming for. The saving is really more than that because these same clothes will cost from $5 to $10 more next fall.

Somehow people prefer our clothes and are willing to be somewhat inconvenienced to secure them.

Thiede Good Clothes

P. S. The PALM BEACH people do not permit us to pay this 10c per dollar purchase on their clothes.

Work of Institute Finds Practical Value in Industry

Technical Director Discusses Projects at Meeting of Executives

Several of the projects undertaken at the Institute of Paper Chemistry have already found practical value in industrial procedure. Dr. Otto Kress, technical director of the Friday afternoon session of the second annual conference of paper industry executives sponsored by the Institute.

Presenting a resume of the more important projects undertaken over the period of seven years since the Institute's beginning he discussed typical research problems and their application to the paper industry. A number of projects were discussed technically at some length. As a group the projects represent the latest advances in research in the paper making field, he said.

Dr. Harry E. Lewis, dean of the Institute, talked upon the methods employed in selecting student personnel. He compared the problem of making a wise selection of students for the institute to that of a mill executive in obtaining the best materials for manufacture, and pointed out that setting up definite specifications for the selection of man power was the more difficult of the two tasks.

Seek Best Sources
He said one of the most acute problems was that of locating the best sources from which to draw students. In the Institute's early days great difficulty was experienced in discovering the proper candidates from the large number who applied for admission.

Three years ago a beginning was made on what he considered a more positive method of selection, he said. At this point the institute tried to discover the best available man power rather than wait for it to seek admission.

During the winter of 1934-35 he visited some thirty colleges and universities for this purpose. He made a definite attempt, he said, on this trip, to interest the candidates he interviewed in the paper industry as a life work. As a result about one hundred senior chemists and chemical engineers applied for admission.

In the fall of 1935 a class of 15 entered, 11 of whom came from the paper industry. One of these, Dean Lewis had interviewed, which were outstanding on their various campuses, and their services were sought by other industries and other universities as well as by the Institute.

Keen Competition
The class which will enter in the fall of 1937 represents a selection from 60 institutions which Dr. Lewis visited during the past winter. Every man in the new class has been interviewed and investigated on his own campus with the exception of one, in most every case these men have selected the Institute in the face of keen competition on the part of the large chemical institutions and universities.

Dr. Lewis next discussed under five separate heads the tentative selection of student personnel including geographical distribution of the entire class, scholarship, personality, physique and ability to do research and handle executive work.

The remainder of his work dealt largely with fulfilling requirements for degrees at the Institute and with the curriculum. A considerable increase in student quality has been noted during the last two years, due to the change of policy in student selection, and this has made possible a change in curriculum for next year, he said.

Presents Students
Dr. Lewis then presented three students, T. Richard Probst, Fred Hanson, and A. Loy Bixler, who discussed work that they had been doing in connection with the preparation of papers for degrees.

Dr. E. W. Rowland, research associate, in his speech upon "Fundamental Research at the Institute," called attention to the fact that within a comparatively recent period there has grown a partnership between industry and science. The impact of scientific discovery, he said, has revealed a new perspective not only to industrialists but to scientists who have visualized the immense contributions within their power to give. Today it no longer remains necessary for industry to solicit the aid of science, nor for science to reiterate its pleas for aid from industry that the discovery of the laboratory may find a full opportunity to enrich the lives of men, he said.

A research program, Dr. Rowland said, may result from long and careful deliberation arising from a desire to learn the basic facts concerning materials and the natural laws which govern their behavior. The philosophy of such an undertaking consists largely in the faith that from a rich background of basic facts and understanding, ideas will certainly emerge, often in the most unexpected manner.

Exact Requirements
The question may be asked as to what pursue any other kind of research program and why, if results of great value follow with certainty, this kind of broad and basic scientific investigation is not more commonly supported by industry. In the first place such a program of basic investigation has several exacting and decisive requirements if it is to be successfully pursued. Much caution is appropriate when

Old Car Parade Planned by Jaces For 3-Day Picnic

Junior Chamber of Commerce Committees Consider Celebration

An old car parade, one of four which will feature entertainment during the Appleton Junior Chamber of Commerce 3-day picnic, will be held Monday afternoon, July 5, at Erb park, the parade committee decided last night at a meeting at the Metropolitan Cafe in Hotel Appleton. The program booklet and greased pole contest committee also met last night.

Major Fred Hoffman, marshal of the day for the opening parade Saturday afternoon, July 3, met with the committees last night as they outlined plans for the picnic which will be held Saturday, Sunday and Monday, July 3, 4, and 5, at Erb park.

Plans for the line of march for the opening parade on Saturday were considered and the committee decided to start the parade on the west side of Appleton and have the line of march lead to the east side where marchers will disperse.

Plan Other Parades
Other parades planned include decorated old buggy and decorated wagon parades Sunday and Monday afternoon. Boys and girls from Appleton and surrounding territory will take part in the above two parades, while patriotic, fraternal and civic organizations will march in the opening parade Saturday.

A general membership meeting will be held Monday evening at the Metropolitan Cafe and members will select a new board of directors. Candidates include Glenn H. Arthur, Wilmer Gruett, Dr. R. C. Joyce, Harold Aykens, Robert Nehls H. L. Davis, Jr., Chester Thiede, Fred Boughton, Clarence Scherer, Edward Verbrink, Wilmer Falk, Robert Rule, Roy McNeil, H. K. Derus, Kenneth Ratz, Walter C. Dixon, E. V. Kirk and C. D. Fox.

The membership also will vote on a new dues schedule of $5 a year and a $1.50 initiation fee. Plans for incorporation of the organization have been submitted to the state department of the junior chamber of commerce.

Building Permits
One building permit was issued yesterday by the building inspection department. The permit was granted to Lloyd Prasher, 1226 S. Mason street, addition to residence, $300.

embarking upon a broad program of fundamental research. The industrial laboratory is, with good justification, anxious for results at the least expenditure of time and money. The investigator knows this and is consequently placed under a mental hazard from which he indeed cannot well be spared as a member of the working organization. But let it be recalled that mere intensity of purpose is in itself not a sufficient guarantee for successful effort in the investigation of the unknown. He must be allowed to feel that his serious labors will not be abruptly terminated or deflected while he is in the midst of his studies.

"The entire history of scientific method and its accomplishments attests the importance of long sustained effort combined with financial outlay beyond the scope of all excepting a very few individual laboratories.

"It has been found," Dr. Rowland said, "that the academic program at the Institute affords a happy solution to this difficult problem in fundamental research. There, he says, is the directing leadership fully aware of the technical needs of the industry, reducing to a minimum the danger of basic research in its inherent tendency to get too far afield. There is also the intellectual and aesthetic academic atmosphere conducive to undisturbed creative effort. Thesis assignments provide an unhampered opportunity for continuity of investigation, largely independent of time and expense factors."

Westbrook Steele, executive director, traced the growth of the institute through its eight years of existence. His speech covered the facts of the institute's beginnings as an idea for a cooperative venture linking industry and an academic institution in a unique way, through the building of the first building, the Kimberly Memorial library, and the addition to it the original meaning with reference to the meaning of these physical expansions in terms of the inner growth of the institution. He also explained details of plans for further cooperation between the institute and its membership.

Research Seen as Road to Solution Of Economic Ills

Better Understanding of Fundamentals Is Need, Paper Executives Told

Research as the road to solution of economic problems through the provision of more and better and cheaper materials and goods and the resulting rise in the standard of living was advocated last night by L. A. Hawkins, manager of the research laboratories of the General Electric company, Schenectady, at a banquet meeting of paper industry executives at the North Shore country club.

The banquet session was a part of a 2-day conference of the paper industry's chief executives sponsored by the Institute of Paper Chemistry. The conference closed today after round table discussions at the institute.

Talking on research in industry, Mr. Hawkins divided research into two fields, intensive or engineering, and extensive or fundamental.

Goal in Sight
Illustrating intensive research he recalled the development of ductile tungsten wire for the filaments of incandescent lamps after four years of work by Coolidge in the General Electric laboratory, and explained that in this case the goal was in sight from the beginning.

On extensive or fundamental research, Hawkins referred to the discovery of electro-magnetic induction by Faraday, the result, not of a desire to place some particular product before the public, but of efforts to find new knowledge.

He also recalled the work of Irving Langmuir, General Electric scientist, who started by investigating the blackening that occurred in incandescent lamps and whose subsequent discoveries, with at no time a definite application in mind, led to far reaching developments.

Led to Progress
Knowledge gained by Langmuir in his fundamental research, Mr. Hawkins pointed out, led to the development of the gas-filled lamp, to the progress of wireless, the invention of the atomic hydrogen welding torch and other progressive steps.

When fundamental research is started, he emphasized, the scientist doesn't know to what his experiments will lead, and studies started in one direction have led to entirely new discoveries in other fields.

There is, he said, continuous need for better understanding of fundamentals. Just so much as science is able to get at fundamentals, just so much will the progress of science be expedited.

Lauds Institute
Lauding the work being done at the Institute of Paper Chemistry, the scientist said more fundamental research is needed in university and industrial laboratories. There is no more hopeful place for solution of economic problems, labor discontent and unemployment, he stated.

At the opening of the post-dinner program, Ernst Mahler, vice president of the Kimberly Clark corporation and president of the institute's board of trustees, welcomed the executives participating in the conference, pointed briefly to the value of the institute activities and introduced Dr. Thomas N. Barrows, president of Lawrence college and director of the institute.

Stating that the growth of the institute was due to the intelligence, spirit and vision of the paper industry, the Lawrence president pointed out that the institute is unique in organization, finance and unity of purpose.

Presents Toastmaster
Ernst Behrend, president of the Hammermill Paper company and an institute trustee was introduced by Mr. Mahler as toastmaster. Mr. Behrend, in turn, presented George Meade, president of the Meade corporation at Chillicothe, O., and also a trustee.

Mr. Meade, stating that it has done one of the most constructive jobs that ever has been done for any industry, urged active support of institute operations by pulp and paper manufacturers.

He commended the location and progress of the institute and asserted that great problems of the present and future can only be solved by the intelligent leadership that will come from an enlightened technical group. Here in Appleton, he said, is the greatest foundation on which to build.

Stating that the growth of the institute was due to the intelligence, spirit and vision of the paper industry, the Lawrence president pointed out that the institute is unique in organization, finance and unity of purpose.

Presents Toastmaster
Ernst Behrend, president of the Hammermill Paper company and an institute trustee was introduced by Mr. Mahler as toastmaster. Mr. Behrend, in turn, presented George Meade, president of the Meade corporation at Chillicothe, O., and also a trustee.

Mr. Meade, stating that it has done one of the most constructive jobs that ever has been done for any industry, urged active support of institute operations by pulp and paper manufacturers.

He commended the location and progress of the institute and asserted that great problems of the present and future can only be solved by the intelligent leadership that will come from an enlightened technical group. Here in Appleton, he said, is the greatest foundation on which to build.

Grant American Citizenship to Ten Applicants

Relief Corps Presents Program at Naturalization Hearing

Ten persons, including four former subjects of Wilhelmina, queen of the Netherlands, one of the Swiss confederation and one of the Czechoslovak republic, received their citizenship papers at a naturalization hearing before circuit Judge Edgar V. Werner this morning.

They are Heinrich Ferdinand Kreikamp, 160 Henry street, Kimberly; Antonius Hendrickus Savonje, 220 N. Richmond street; Peter and Anton Van Nuland, Lincoln street, Kimberly; all former subjects of Queen Wilhelmina; Gertrude Grunwald, route 1, Dale; Eric Kirk, 802 E. Hancock street; Charles Herman Kunze, 409 Main street, Kaukauna; Hans Carl Baumer, changed to John Baumer, 1048 E. Eldorado street, former citizens of the German Reich; August Vils, 717 Dodge street, Kaukauna, former citizen of the Swiss confederation, and Marie Franck, 703 S. Locust street, former citizen of the Czechoslovak republic.

Present Program
A program under the direction of Mrs. Oran Peotter, patriotic instructor of the Appleton Women's Relief corps, included two songs and a history of the flag by girl scouts of the McKinley Junior High school; instructions on the salute to the flag by W. L. Crow, chaplain of Oney Johnston post of American Legion, distribution of patriotic literature by the corps and a talk on "America and Liberty" by Mrs. John R. E. Miller, department patriotic instructor of the Women's Relief corps.

"Ours is a government in which the people are ruled by representatives of their own choice and for the benefit of the people themselves," Mrs. Miller stated.

"We would remind you as you look upon the American flag this morning that there isn't a thing woven into it which would suggest a crown or a dictatorship. Our government is founded upon the principle of equality and no one in our country cares to wear a crown."

"The flag is not merely a sign that the government will help and protect us at home and abroad. It is also a call, a command to every one of us to stand by the government, to support it, to obey its laws, to pay our taxes to the treasury, and to live such useful lives that the next generation of children will have even a nobler republic to live in than we have had."

"It is the sacred duty of every American to perpetuate our civil institutions and avert the dangers that threaten them. Impressed with a deep sense of the blessings of liberty which our government bestows upon us, we have a corresponding dread, lest through our negligence these blessings be taken away from us."

"Hence we are extremely vigilant in teaching American patriotism to our children. We are reminding you, to teach Americanism in your homes to your children and grandchildren. Every day the opportunity will come to you, to show the love and loyalty you bear your adopted country."

THE FRUIT OF BROKEN WORDS

Leo Krzycki was quoted yesterday by a Chicago paper in relation to the steel strike as follows:

"We are going to fight on to victory regardless of the cost in lives of our martyrs."
"If the Republic Company is not on the square we are ready to spill our blood in large quantities in the middle of the road."

Now, this is quite defiant. Overlook Mr. Krzycki's willingness to spill the blood of others instead of his own let us find out what the real trouble is in this matter if it is possible.

Certainly it must be something pretty deep. Surely these men on strike must be fed by starvation wages or be worked long hours under intolerable conditions or be driven by cruel bosses, or some other condition must prevail of such a deep and serious nature that humanity rebels instinctively against it.

For there are something like 70,000 men who have been called out on this steel worker strike.

An investigation shows us a complete absence of the usual controversies that result in disturbances of this character.

The Youngstown company, apparently speaking for the 3 companies involved, points out that it has recognized C.I.O. as the proper representative of its members for bargaining purposes, that it has no disagreement with C.I.O. over the wages requested by the contract proffered upon the part of the union, that the company gives its workers a longer vacation and upon more liberal terms than that proposed by C.I.O., that there is no quarrel at all over the hours of work, that the company has often told C.I.O. that it will always meet with its representatives for all purposes as specified by the Wagner law.

But—and here is the stone in the road—Youngstown will not sign any written contract with C.I.O.

That is the whole cause of the trouble. Is it worth fighting about?

First, look at the Wagner law. Sustained in its validity by unanimous action of the supreme court that court, however, remarked that it did not even suggest written contracts between the parties.

Why then should there be any?

Men recognize a certain sort of stability that arises in having contracts to cover relations for a reasonable length of time depending upon the circumstances and conditions surrounding every business.

But one thing must always exist in every contract. It must be mutual. In other words it binds one it must bind the other.

Note what Youngstown says about such a contract:

"Signed agreements with labor organizations have not resulted in industrial peace. Notwithstanding such agreements, slowdown strikes and other interruptions of employment persist. Those who sign such agreements on behalf of labor are without power to enforce them."

Unfortunately, very unfortunately, news items printed almost every day support the Youngstown statement. That is, the settlement of strikes, the drawing of written agreements, the word of honor given by unions that there would be no more interruption of work without the presentation of grievances or an effort at settlement or arbitration or some other similar peaceful means have simply been flouted.

We do not pretend to know whether these constantly recurring sit-downs that last from a few hours to a few days are the fault of workers any more than of management but we do know that they have occurred constantly in spite of written agreements that any such differences should be settled without resort to such disturbances.

There was a time when labor thought a great deal of its word of honor. There are instances where it insisted on carrying out its solemn obligations despite the cruelty of the law.

But with the introduction of the C.I.O. and the flabby Wagner law and the flabby governmental policy, labor in many instances has pursued a sort of wise guy policy much to its detriment, to the loss of its standing with the public and that has finally brought from large employers the declaration: What is the use of making a contract with those who won't live up to their words?

The jolt thus given to labor should be helpful to it. Men in the ranks must resolve to refuse to follow leadership that is flippant, dishonorable or Smart Aleck.

As long as labor bows to fellows like Leo Krzycki and his "large quantities of blood in the middle of the road" it is bound to be in constant trouble, but, much worse, it is jeopardizing the rights it has just secured.

WARDS OF THE WORLD

Some of the very worthwhile activities of the League of Nations have been overlooked, and certainly this should not be because they tend to expose to the rest of the world the really horrible conditions of injustice that are purposely forced upon those who have merely insisted that they be accorded a few of the very primary privileges of people in relation to freedom of word and action.

The Jews are not the only ones tramped upon. They are almost literally stretched upon the rack in Germany, and now in Poland, but their situation is no more desperate than that of millions of others who have been taken under the protecting wings of the League of the famous Nansen Office for Refugees.

This Office at the present time is looking after 445,312 Russians who have escaped the great prison known as the U.S.S.R. Had they been caught going out they would have been shot. If they are returned they will be shot. The Office says their only offense is their inability to stand Soviet despotism.

It does seem passing strange that so many Russians will walk into the jaws of death rather than stay in the land that is really a little piece of a perfect heaven, no unemployment, no capitalism, no cares of state or worries about the budget, nothing but a serene life opening with a song in the morning and closing with another in the evening and yet these nearly half million took death as a happy alternative to a failure of escape. How many millions have been shot at the border, no one of course can ever know.

Then the Nansen Office looks after Anti-Fascist Italians, Armenians and Anti-Nazi Germans. But what will it do upon the cessation of the Spanish war? It will have its hands full unless it can convince the defeated that they will be treated in something approaching a decent manner, and after the excesses of the war it will not be easy to bring such conviction to many.

And so you see a great unrest in the nations, the pressing desire of many millions to get away from every despotism. But the despots make it as hard for them to get away as possible. Despite the willingness of America to help financially with this great human problem it must not let down the bars of immigration. We can and should give willingly to help so many honest people in distress but our capacity to give depends primarily upon preserving our own country for our own people in as full measure as is reasonably possible.

HE DIDN'T PACK THE COURT EITHER!

The following is a correct translation of an extract from an opinion recently handed down by the Brunswick (Germany) Court of Appeals:

"The Fuhrer of the German people is an envoy whom God has charged with a great mission for his people and for the whole world. It is, therefore, the duty of the Church not to oppose, but to obey, the will of God of which the Fuhrer is the expression."

We are not advised the exact limit of jurisdiction of this particular court of appeals but it seems to be spreading out a little beyond the boundaries when it seeks to extend the "great mission" of Hitler to "the whole world."

If a German walking along the edge of the Black Forest should mumble that the said court had been packed a way is open to handle such a recalcitrant. He may be charged with treason in having said something "against the interests of the Reich" and his is the privilege of being tried before the same court.

Making a court subservient to, dependent upon, or subject to coercion by any ruler is to honest government; what a dirk through the heart is to an individual.

Opinions Of Others

NOT OUR BABY

The national labor relations board has issued a violent denunciation of Remington-Rand, Inc. in its dealings with its employees. The language of the opinion is harsh to the point of intemperance, but if the facts of stubborn refusal to treat with employees and disregard for their rights as men and women are as the board states them to be, the indignation against the company will be and should be very generally shared.

A point which may be overlooked amid the excitement aroused by the board's rhetoric is that the head of Remington-Rand, Inc. is Mr. James R. Rand Jr., a man whose opinions have been given great weight in New Deal circles. Mr. Rand will be remembered as the chairman of the self-styled committee for the nation. It was this committee to which Mr. Roosevelt looked for advice particularly in matters of currency and finance.

Mr. Roosevelt consulted Mr. Rand and his committee and frequently made use of the arguments they prepared for him in favor of devaluing the dollar. Mr. Rand and his committee were greatly esteemed in Washington until quite recently. The fact that many of the businesses they represented were heavily in debt and accordingly were likely to benefit disproportionately from devaluation was glossed over. The committee for the nation, in the judgment of New Dealers, was composed of that precious minority of business men who were distinguished for broadness of social vision.

Now the New Deal is presenting Mr. Rand as a horrible example of the Tory, the economic royalist, the predatory industrialist. He may be all of these things but in addition he has been a most useful friend of the administration in

JUMBLED MUTTERINGS

THE great presence of please-remits in the mail leaves your correspondent in what is known as a blue funk. I do not have any exact idea as to just what is known as a blue funk, but it sounds like what I am in. The situation, moreover, is not tempered by any arrival of unexpected checks, friendly letters, or sparkling contributions to this pillar of things and stuff.

There would be one consolation if I were the kind of a guy who could find solace in not having something. For example, it might be consoling to remember that I do not have a hangover while I am writing this piece. However, your correspondent is the kind of a guy who would regard the absence of a hangover as the direct result of no money and no party the night before.

That reminds me of Wild Bill, now long removed from these parts. Wild Bill could take the opposite stand from the one I take. He would return from a trip to Green Bay or Wausau or Milwaukee or other such parts, with a slight headache and a happy grin.

"Jeepers, I'm broke, he would say. "but think, how much money I saved by not going to St. Louis this weekend."

And then I would remind him that he saved even more by not going to New York over the weekend and he would remember that it costs more to go to Los Angeles.

By then we would have figured up how much a trip around the world would have cost, and how much he saved by not taking a trip around the world.

With those savings, Wild Bill was theoretically in a position to retire and take a trip around the world anyway. It was always amazing to us how much money you could save without having anything to show for it, and we would finally give up the whole business and look around to see if there were makings for one more cold one.

The repetition of this disillusionment at the end of each session of saving big money finally dinned itself into my I-wish-there-was-a-Santa-Claus consciousness and left me in my present frame of mind.

Now, when I get a rash, I do not sit back and smile and let on as how happy I am I do not have smallpox or measles. I complain about the rash and scratch when nobody is looking. Of course, I have not had a rash in some time, but I can think about it anyway. It illustrates the principle of the thing.

At the same time, I am not above groaning at times over how much money I would be worth today if I had possessed enough foresight back in 1933 to buy up common stocks which could be had for a song and a couple of ham sandwiches. Today, a lot of those song-and-ham-sandwich stocks are high hat affairs of the first rank, and owners of them are hutting the jackpot every so often.

The next time common stocks can be bought for a song and a couple of ham sandwiches, I will load up.

I'll bet.

A Verse for Today

By Anne Campbell

"AUNT IDE"

She is "Aunt Ide" to every one in town. One time a stranger asked for her by name. The townsman scratched his head, looked up and down.

And didn't know her! Finally light came. To his befuddled mind, and with great pride. He said: "Oh, I know her! You mean Aunt Ide!"

She knows each child who runs the village streets.

And every man and woman in the place. She has a smile for every one she meets. The town is brightened by her cheerful face. There is no secret we do not confide. To understanding, generous "Aunt Ide."

The years are heavy on her silver head. Laugh-wrinkles etch a pattern on her cheek. How many thousand hearts she's comforted. We do not know! Of this she does not speak; But for the goodness that she cannot hide. The whole town loves, and cherishes "Aunt Ide!"

WE WERE JUST WONDERING HOW WE WERE GOING TO KEEP THE OLD BUS RUNNING

Personal Health Talks

BY WILLIAM BRADY M. D.
Noted Physician and Author

THE LOST FUNCTION OF ASPIRATION

The chief function of the circulation is respiration, that is, tissue and cell respiration, carrying oxygen to the tissues and cells of the body, and carrying back to the lungs carbon dioxide to be blown off.

On the other hand, an important function of the respiration is to aid the circulation. This the breathing does by the process of aspiration, as we shall attempt to explain in a moment. Unhindered, a natural breathing serves as a booster pump which helps to pull the blood back from the veins to the right side of the heart which pumps it into the lungs to be oxygenated again. From the lungs the oxygenated blood, purified of its load of carbon dioxide, goes to the left side of the heart, and from there it is again pumped thru the arteries to all parts of the body.

During inspiration or inflation of the lungs, bellows, belly there is increased pressure within the abdomen and a decreased pressure within the thorax or chest. In consequence of this, blood in the large veins in the chest, onward toward the right side of the heart. The effect of this boost is not lost during expiration or deflation because valves in the veins prevent or impede backflow. The variations in pressure do not affect the blood in the arteries much if any, because the arteries are thick-walled and are constantly distended by the internal blood pressure, unlike the veins which are thin-walled and under comparatively low internal blood pressure.

Just how much venous blood is sucked into the chest and heart from the large veins in the abdomen at each unimpeded inflation, it is difficult to estimate, and the amount varies widely with the manner of breathing, but it need not be great. An ounce or two of blood may save life.

We have mentioned unimpeded natural breathing. That is belly breathing. Not chest breathing. The importance of this is explained in detail in the booklet "The Art of Easy Breathing," No. 20 in the Little Lessons in the Ways of Health series, and sets you back ten cents and a stamped envelope bearing your address. Most people who have had only a common college education are ignorant of the physiology of life. Nine out of ten persons, if asked to take the deepest possible inspiration, hamper themselves by attempting to expand the chest when they should pay no attention to the chest or pretend it is paralyzed. They breathe rather to expand or inflate the bellows, the belly. Likewise most persons who have had only a college or high school education strive to hold in or draw up the belly and expand or thrust out the chest whenever they think of posture. This is unnatural. It is comical. It retards circulation, slows oxygenation of the tissues and cells, lowers life.

People who wear belts, support corsets, circles, and the like, invariably cheat themselves of the vital aid of aspiration. If hardening of the arteries is a sign of old age, flexibility or suppleness of the belly muscles is a measure of youth.

Your Birthday

"GEMINI"
If June 6 is your birthday, the best hours for you on this date are from 10:15 a. m. to 12:15 p. m. from 3:15 to 5:15 p. m. and from 9:15 to 11:15 p. m. The danger periods are from 8:15 to 10:15 a. m. from 5:15 to 7:15 p. m. and from 11:15 p. m. until midnight.

This should be a very pleasant day for you. Many gratifying unfoldments of true friendship may be experienced before the day is over. The day may be filled with amusing incidents, and delightful surprises. Something rather mystifying may keep you guessing for a short time, but an explanation may be satisfactory. You may receive a valuable suggestion this day, which if acted upon is apt to bear good results. Misunderstandings may arise through some ambiguous expression, so use plain language when discussing anything of importance. If deeply affected by some kindness, do not be ashamed to show your emotion, for, if none is expressed you may be judged as lacking in appreciation. Marriages and engagements, and those whose love affairs are running smoothly, ought to take constructive criticism graciously this day, for it will be prompted by love and not a desire to find fault.

If a woman and June 6 is your birthday, you may dislike making hasty decisions and therefore find it difficult to make up your mind quickly on important issues. Your chief danger lies in a lack of decision conveying the impression that you have a hard time to make up your mind. You are likely to find it poor judgment to be stand-offish, so let the spirit of good fellowship emanate from you, if you desire popularity. Do not ignore your own interests in planning help for someone else. Be careful you do not misjudge a friend this day, by jumping hastily to a conclusion because of a bit of choice gossip. You ought to meet with great success as a teacher, radio entertainer, publicity agent, broker, author, artist or musician.

cian. You may find your greatest happiness in marriage.

The child born on June 6, from its early teens may give evidence of being very artistic and capable. Apparently a great deal of good fortune will come into its life.

If a man and June 6 is your natal day, your principal handicap may be a quick temper. Master this if you wish to attain popularity and success. You may find you possess every qualification to become a good lawyer, salesman, writer, doctor, preacher, artist or banker. Successful People Born on June 6: John Trumbull, soldier and artist. Seen And Heard In New York

BY GEORGE TUCKER

New York—Personal notes of a New Yorker's cuff:
John LaGatta gave himself a complete education in drawing before he was 12 by sketching caricatures of his family on the living room wallpaper. . . . Of all things, a juggling act is the night life sensation at the moment. It isn't the perfection of their juggling, it's the facial expressions and comedy angles employed by the trio of Lime actors.

Martha Madison, the authoress, is wedded to a French count—or was. . . . Not long ago this department spoke disparagingly of eels, and a lass from Maine has written in to protest. . . . Apparently I've offended her and I'm right sorry. . . . But I still don't like them.

Of all impressions made by this island, I think the most profound was on Jean Mital, a French chemical engineer. . . . As he strode the deck of an incoming liner he was not only speechless but flabbergasted. . . . "It's 30 years since I was here," he murmured presently, "and the Flatiron building was the tallest thing here. . . . I can't get over it."

Miriam Hopkins has a pair of gold ice-skates—at least the runners are gold. . . . But she never dares use them. . . . An earl gave them to her. . . . The next musical show at the Center is going to have colonial Virginia as a locale. . . . Jean Harlow hasn't been to New York in nearly six years, but she frequently comes to Chicago, St. Louis and even as far east as Washington. . . . Not long ago I ran into an old photographed theatrical playbill. . . . The signature on it was Evelyn Hooey's. . . . She was the torch singer who was found dead on a farm in Pennsylvania several years ago.

Visitors from Detroit tell me the baseball public has lost all patience with Schoolboy Rowe, who now is considered to be a big baby. . . . Vaudeville, in a haphazard sort of way, still exists, but it seldom attracts the big names, such as Cantor, Jessel, Durante and Holtz. . . . Occasionally one such will augment an orchestra of note, but the other entertainers are those of the dime-a-dozen variety—that is, they may have genuine talent, but the public has never heard of them.

Libby Holman is anxious for a musical play on Broadway next fall, but at the moment she doesn't know what it will be. . . . Her last one was "Revenge With Music." . . . One side of Times Square has changed so much during the past 18 months that visitors

A Bystander In Washington

BY PRESTON GROVER

Washington—Secretary Hull, who likes best to negotiate the peace of the world on a high idealistic plane, has been compelled by a band of midwestern farmers to talk treaty on a cow-coral level.

Hull went to Buenos Aires last winter to treat in his best Father Francisco manner for an extension of reciprocity among the American republics.

Ultimately the treating got down to a give and take basis, with the American delegation trying to bring about a sort of Pan-American peace hegemony even in the face of the several republics definitely committed to cooperation with European nations in the league.

Stumbling Block

Beef has been a touchy subject with Argentina for many years. American cattle growers insist that the presence of hoof and mouth disease in spots of Argentina make it highly dangerous to import beef here. But some concede frankly that it is a smoke-screen. The real reason, they say, is that the United States has enough beef in its own yards without permitting Argentina to cut in on the market.

When the formal conference actually opened, President Roosevelt was able to express the hope that the United States would shake off its fear of hoof and mouth infection and allow importation of Argentine beef from those sections of that country which were free of the disease.

Stalemate

But the Argentine sanitary treaty, under which such importations would be allowed, has dangled on the senate calendar for weeks.

The President said recently he was prepared to submit to the senate the various peace machinery treaties negotiated at Buenos Aires but every senator knows they won't be worth a hoot unless Argentina gets her feet quiet.

Desperately Hull and his hands have argued with the western senators, urging them to let up on the beef business. But they never have been wholly sold on this reciprocity business.

Here and There Around World

BOOK-PIRATING

Shanghai, China.—Photostatic copies of American and European books are being sold in Shanghai markets and doing a roaring trade of copyrights out of large sums. Although sale of pirated editions is banned and they are not advertised to any extent, persons in the know can get foreign books at one-fourth the published prices. More than 1,000 titles are listed, most of them on technical subjects. The history of pirating started in Tientsin when an engineering school printed photostatic copies of textbooks for its own students. Then the college began to supply schools all over the country. Bookstores, recognizing a good thing, soon followed suit.

ESCALATOR "DE-KILTS"

London.—More than 20,000,000 people rode London's underground railways during coronation week—and the best story is of the jaunty Highlander who lost his kilt.

The Highlander rode an escalator while sitting on one of the steps. The kilt was a loud ripping noise. The kilt was up while the Scot continued down.

It was all very embarrassing until someone loaned the Scot a coat, inasmuch as crowds before and behind made it impossible to retrieve the kilt.

RIKISHA ON WAF OUT

Tokyo.—The rikisha, long regarded as the symbol of the Orient, is fast disappearing in Japan. Motorbuses, taxis and trams are two-wheeled vehicle off the busy streets of most of the larger cities. Have forced the quaint drawdown.

He'll be Remembered

For His Malapropisms

Saltion, W. Va.—Shelt Carpenter no longer tells stories to his friends in the hills but his friends will never cease telling stories about him.

It has been but a fortnight since the 73-year-old mountain philosopher died but at every country gathering in Braxton county he is missed. Shelt's story telling wasn't confined solely to history, as exemplified in his recitation of the proud moment when at the age of 73 he killed a record-sized snake near his home. "I set forth fishing on a beautiful day and all of a sudden I saw a pike lying paragonically and in a hyperbolic position near the boat. I did poise my spear and with great ease let fly, hitting him fairly behind the nape of the neck and killing him stone dead. He was a magnolius fish."

Dodge City, Kans.—A recent order to all westbound trains on the Dodge City-Cimarron Valley branch of the Santa Fe read: "Watch for sand drifts over the rails between Keyes and Boise City. Watch for high water between Hugoton and Rolla."

hardly recognize it. . . . A new cinema has sprung up and flanking it are fifty dime stores and drugstores where everything but automobile fenders, and probably drugs, may be purchased. New York being a "season" town, scarcely a week passes in which a new one is not ushered in. There's the theatrical season, the fishing season, the fall sports season, the baseball season, the style season. New York's the park season.

Unusual Twin Bill
Will Show at Rio

Clark Gable and Myrna Loy
Starring in
'Parnell'

Starting next Friday the Rio Theater presents one of the most outstanding twin bill programs ever offered. It is headed by the latest screen sensation, "Parnell," starring Clark Gable and Myrna Loy, loving tenderly, excitingly, desperately, defying convention, taking their happiness where they found it.

The stars of "Wife vs. Secretary," "Men in White" and "Manhattan Melodrama" are together again in a gripping, human drama of a man and a woman surrendering to a love that could not be denied.

The supporting cast, with seventy-five speaking roles, is one to delight any audience. It is headed by Edna May Oliver as the testy, lovable Aunt Ben; Billie Burke as the giggling, giddy Clara and Alan Marshall as the pompous, ambitious Mr. O'Shea.

There has never been a more beautiful love story written than "Parnell." It has captured the warm hearts of the Irish people, their joys and their sorrows. It will reach deep into the hearts of all who see it.

The furious fun and melodious music in "Pick a Star," combined with its big cast of stars make this second attraction on the bill, the tops in entertainment.

The galaxy of stellar comedians in "Pick a Star" give outstanding performances. Hoydenish Patsy Kelly in the role of Rosina Lawrence's wisecracking sister scores brilliantly with delivery of witty gags. Beautiful Rosina Lawrence's pleasing voice and skillful acting heralds her appearance as a comely, willful Jack Harkness in "Pick a Star," a difficult part. Versatile, Mica Auer as the faking girl-crazy picture star, adds materially to his comedy triumphs.

Lincoln County Land
Is Offered for Park

Madison—The legislature's joint committee on finance had under advisement Friday an offer from citizens of Merrill and Lincoln county to donate to the state 277 acres of land as a site for a state park.

Paul Gebert, spokesman for the delegation, explained to the committee that Merrill citizens are purchasing the tract for $75,000, decided they were unable to maintain it. He said they wanted the state to protect the virgin timber.

It would be a shame, he said, "if some future city administration sold the timber and it was reduced to slash."

C. L. Harrington, superintendent of forests and parks for the state conservation department, welcomed the "generous" offer, but said he hoped the committee would find some means of financing operation of another park before accepting the land.

Committee Seeks Bids
On Office Improvement

Bids on improvement of the register of deeds office to provide additional room for storage or records will be taken by the county buildings and grounds committee at the courthouse June 8. Bids also will be taken on proposed improvements in a second floor rest room.

True Nature Lover Also
Is a Conservationist

BY CLARA HUSSONG

The Memorial day week-end was spent by members of the Green Bay Bird club in Door county participating in a field seminar conducted by staff members of the Milwaukee Public Museum.

Through no fault of the leaders of the excursion the session was not as enjoyable to me as previous ones had been.

The fly in my ointment was the feeling of guilt I had all during the time the field trips were conducted and still more since I came home. Conservation of wild plant and animal life was stressed in all the discussions and practiced on all the field trips. In the three and a half years I have been writing these articles I have seldom devoted the whole column to a discussion of conservation but have taken it for granted that all nature lovers were conservationists.

Perhaps I am wrong but I still believe that all true nature lovers do believe in and practice conservation. There are a good many others who give themselves that name but whose love of nature goes no farther than wanting to know where the rarest flowers grow so they may pick them up and try to transplant them on their own grounds.

Picks Ox Eye Daisies

To be able to enjoy all natural beauty and to leave it as it is and where it is requires education of adults as well as children. When I was a child I lived in the northern part of the state where wild flowers were plentiful. I picked as many as I wanted because I thought they grew as profusely everywhere and for several years I never heard of wild flower preservation.

The first hint of it came when I was in the seventh grade from a teacher to whom I had presented a bouquet of fringed gentians. She pointed out the beauty of the flower and what was still more important, its rarity. The idea that some wild flowers should not be picked was so new and startling that it took years before I could enjoy them in the field and wood without wanting to carry them home.

That does not mean I go without wild flower bouquets altogether. When the season for them comes around I have great bouquets of ox eye daisies, toadflax, Queen Anne's lace, spreading dogbane and many others. All these are weeds, according to the farmer, and growing in places where they are not wanted, but they are beautiful flowers as well.

Some Flowers Hard to Grow

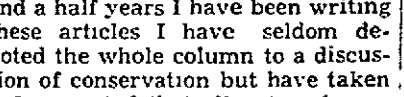

In Wisconsin, so far, wild flower conservation has meant refraining from picking certain species which are in danger of extermination. In the eastern states it means allowing them to grow in their native haunts and planting others as well. The need for helping nature to keep the state well supplied with fish, game birds and forests is well known. Soon we shall hear of the restoration of wild flowers to their original homes which are now under cultivation or where the flowers have been exterminated through fires, droughts or floods.

If you wish to have a hand in this don't think that the proper procedure is to go out into the woods and dig up a lady's slipper or a clump of arbutus and then transplant it in your garden. Some wild flowers are very hard to grow because they require special types of soil or other conditions. One way to discover what kinds of flowers will grow in your garden is to get information from the Wild Flower Preservation society, Washington, D. C., or from a private dealer who grows his own wild flowers instead of robbing the fields and forests. Anyone wishing to know the names of some of these dealers may write me for this information.

Finds Many Birds

Birds not classed as game birds are also in need of a champion. Although all song birds are protected in the state there are still some boys with sling shots and BB guns who seem to be unaware that for every one they kill would or have unlawfully in their possession they are liable to a fine of not less than three dollars.

A few miles out of Green Bay is a spot where the numbers and species of birds is so great as to be almost startling. I often wondered why this was so and just a few days ago discovered the reason. A number of years ago a group of men interested in the protection of birds prepared scores of wooden signs bearing the words "Game Refuge, No Hunting," or "Bird Sanctuary, No Trespassing."

Farmers all through this area gave them permission to post these signs on their lands. The man who gave me this information, one of the bird lovers who did the posting, told me that year after year the bird population in that area increased until at present it is one of the best spots to visit for a bird hunting trip. He believes, and I agree with him, that it was the protection given the birds which brought about the increase in their numbers. This is a good idea for other bird-loving property owners to follow.

'Off to the Races' Will be
At Elite Monday and Tuesday

Hang on tight! That family's in again!

This time, however, it's not a private fight for the Jones family. In "Off to the Races," Twentieth Century-Fox hit at the Elite Theatre on Monday and Tuesday, Bargain Days, is beset with a new complication—Uncle Slim Summerville and his horse have moved in!

The fourth film in the popular series featuring the adventures of a typical American family retains the players who have made the Jones family one of the country's favored households—Jed, Prouty, Shirley Deane, George Ernest, June Carlson, Florence Roberts and Billy Mahan—and adds, as a new heart interest opposite Shirley Deane, personable young Russell Gleason.

When Slim Summerville shows up with a mean-tempered little niece of seven, and a horse who seems to be all appetite, the even tenor of the Jones life is thrown for a hilarious loss. Russell Gleason and Shirley Deane find their engagement prematurely announced. Mrs. Jones finds that hay and oats have become the biggest items on her marketing bills, and Mr. Jones finds himself unexpectedly tossed from a sulky.

'Elephant Boy' Is New Type of Film

"Elephant Boy," Alexander Korda's film version of Rudyard Kipling's "Toomai of the Elephants," comes to the Appleton Theatre next Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday. Filmed in the course of a two-year expedition into the heart of the Indian jungles, headed by Robert Flaherty, famous explorer-director "Elephant Boy" is described as one of the most thrilling natural background pictures ever to reach the screen.

The picture introduces a new type of screen team in Sabu, the handsome 12-year-old native Indian boy who plays the title role, and Iravatha, who is said to be the world's largest elephant.

"Elephant Boy" is the story of little Toomai, a boy mahout, and his enormous elephant, Kala Nag. The second feature will be "California Straight Ahead," as stirring drama of an industrial conflict between railroad and trucking lines, starring John Wayne with Louise Latimer in the leading feminine role. The supporting cast includes Robert McWade, Theodore Von Eltz, Tully Marshall and Harry Allen.

Remember Tuesday night is Hollywood night.

TAYLOR AND STANWYCK PLAY TOGETHER

Real life sweethearts, Robert Taylor and Barbara Stanwyck find their supreme opportunity to be together, act together, and become greater together, in the dramatic sensation, "THIS IS MY AFFAIR," playing at the Rio theater through Monday. Victor McLaglen heads the all star supporting cast.

'Cafe Metropole'
To be Shown Here

Loretta Young, Tyrone Power, Adolph Menjou are Stars

A gay and lighthearted Continental romance, luxurious as orchids on ermine, smart as the Rue de la Paix, merry as the third glass of champagne, romantic as moonlight on the Seine, "Cafe Metropole" opens next week Friday at the Appleton Theatre and plays through Monday. Loretta Young, Tyrone Power and Adolph Menjou are in the starring roles.

Against the background of gay Paris and the Continental's most luxurious rendezvous, the screen's most exciting lovers play love's most exciting game, while M. sieu Menjou throws away the rule book and Gregory Ratoff, Charles Winninger and Helen Westley join in the fun.

"Cafe Metropole" gets off to a lively start in the smart Parisian spot of that name, where, presiding suavely over his restaurant, Adolphe Menjou seems untroubled by the possibility that auditors will arrive in a few days and discover that the cafe accounts are short the 480,000 francs which he has borrowed. How this comedy turns out to everyone's satisfaction makes amusing entertainment.

The author of more best-selling novels than any living American writer, Harold Bell Wright, creator of "It Happened One Night," the release coming as his second feature on this program, strikes a new note in Western adventure photoplays. The film combines all the thrilling punches of former Wright novels with an amusing thread of light comedy running throughout. Serious and romantic moments of the story are stirring enacted by Paul Kelly and Judith Allen, in the featured roles. Humor is lent by droll Johnny Arthur, in contrast to the villainy of Leroy Mason, veteran screen "heavy."

Hollywood News And Gossip

BY MRS. ROBBIN COONS (Guest Columnist for Her Husband)

Hollywood—A Hollywood correspondent's wife can paraphrase Milton: "They also serve who only stand—and answer the telephone."

Hollywood correspondents are nomads by the day. So the home telephone becomes the eventual clearing house for more than half the calls. It's a maliciously psychic thing, and seems to know when I am in the tub, or trying to deal in approved nursery school manner with my almost-five-year-old who is covering his toy animals for their "naps" instead of undressing for his own.

Quite often, I'm afraid, I don't manage that "cheery hello" the telephone company advertises, although I try. I know I'm no good at it when the calling party uses that established Hollywood custom of having his secretary get you on the line and then keeps you there while he decides to pick up the instrument.

That was the telephone then. It went like this:

"No, he isn't in. This is Mrs. Coons; may I take a message? No, I don't know where he is at the moment. He said he was going to the office first, then to Paramount, and later he had a date with Pat O'Brien. You've tried the office? Let me see—why not try Paramount?"

Oh, no trouble at all. Good-bye.

That was a press agent. I have a very good telephone acquaintance with that particular one. I know very well that she was NOT important, as she said. She has a new client, some hanger-on in pictures probably, and she will pursue my poor husband by telephone until

Edward G. Robinson Stars in 'This Movie'

'Thunder in the City,' starring Edward G. Robinson with the new Continental screen favorite, Lull Deste, playing opposite him, heads the double bill at the Rio Theatre on Wednesday and Thursday.

The screen play was written by Robert Sherwood, Pulitzer Prize winning playwright, and Aben Kandel, author of "City for Conquest." It's an exciting comedy-satire dealing with an American super-showman who teaches the English a trick or two in high-pressure salesmanship and highpowered romance. Seen in the supporting cast are Nigel Bruce, Constance Collier and Ralph Richardson.

Mexican elements and aerial smuggling are two of the ingredients to be found in "Criminals of the Air," starring Rosalind Keith and Charles Quigley, the second feature attraction on this bill.

"Criminals of the Air" tells the story of a Federal undercover agent who is sent to the trans-border town of Hernandez to aid the U. S. Border Patrol in its fight against a well-organized local band of smugglers that has been flying contraband across the Mexican line. As Hernandez is also a popular place for eloping couples, the undercover man gets a job piloting a plane called the "Honeycomb Express."

Beauty Had No Appeal to This Disappointed Player

BY ELY CULBERTSON
"Dear Mr. Culbertson: A short time ago you published an article in which the defense blew up higher than a kite because, after one defender had shown his partner a stopper in a suit, the other promptly discarded every card in that suit and later searched frantically but fruitlessly for a means of putting the former on lead. This particular type of error, committed last night by a player who, to my knowledge, has had many years of experience, almost knocked me out of my seat. West dealer.

The bidding:
West North East South
1 spade 2 clubs Pass 3 no trump
Pass 2 clubs Pass 3 no trump
Double Pass Pass Pass

"I was East. When North warbled 'two clubs' I could have sworn that he had his neck out from here to Hongkong, but with that mess of mine I couldn't see anything but suspicion. The only excuse I can find for North-South's bidding is that they must have thought they could pick up three or four tricks against our defense. Well, their estimate was pretty good at that!

"My partner, a young woman who should have been contented to just sit and be admired, opened the jack of spades, and declarer won with the king. The club suit was run off, declarer guessing the position of the club queen. On the fourth round I signaled with the nine of diamonds, figuring that my one chance to get on lead to come through the spades was with the diamond king. Dear partner chuckled a low heart on the third club and on the fourth, after seeing my diamond signal, made the sensational and, to me, highly satisfactory discard of the diamond ace. 'Well,' said I to myself, 'the little genius actually noticed my diamond signal and is preparing to put me on lead with a low diamond.' I even beamed a little.

"When the fifth club brought the discard of a low diamond from her, I was only a little nervous. Surely she had kept another diamond to put me on lead. Imagine my horror then, when declarer, after running the clubs, planked down the heart king and my partner won with the ace and returned... a heart!

Uncle Ray's Corner

A Little Saturday Talk

Scores of prisoners were sent to the Galapagos Islands during the nineteenth century. Some of the officers in charge of them gave fair treatment, but others were cruel. Perhaps the cruellest of all was Senor Manuel Cobos. He ruled over the prisoners on the island of Chatham, also over the other settlers there. Being so far from Ecuador, he was not watched by those in control of the home government, and was in a way a "little king." His great desire was to make money, so that he could go back to Ecuador as a rich man.

For more than 20 years, Cobos ruled with an iron hand. The prisoners were forced to work on his plantation. His soldiers were fairly well paid, and they followed the orders given to them. If any prisoner complained, or broke any rule, he was whipped, or shot, or sent to another island to end his days by hunger and thirst.

One poor fellow named Camilo Casanova did something which made Cobos angry, and was ordered taken to an island where no other human being lived. He was left there late in the year 1900 with a jar of water and two knives. In pity, the guards secretly gave him some matches and extra pieces of clothing. Then they went away.

Three years later the tyrant ordered a man to be given "500 lashes on his bare back." This order may make us believe that Cobos was insane. A person so cruel must have

Select Activities That Suit Ages of Children

BY ANGELO PATRI

I did not believe that I could ever get tired hearing a particular word or phrase, or be annoyed by it to the point of exasperation, but I've about reached the place where, unless I tell it to the world, I shall explode about "sex appeal." As long as its use was confined to the description of an adult's state it left me indifferent. When it began to be applied to children in their early teens, even of lesser ages, I must acknowledge a feeling of rebellion against the whole idea. Here is what I mean: Isabelle, twelve years old, is in tears. Brother, sixteen, is red-faced and cross. Mother is anxious and pleading.

"Now, Isabelle, You mustn't behave like this. Of course you must go to dancing class."

"I don't want to go. The boys won't dance with me. They never dance with me unless Miss Butterfield makes them, and they step on my toes and bump me around just to get even. Yes they do, too. I hate them. And I hate her, too. I hate the whole business, and I won't go." And away she runs.

"Junior, talk to her. You surely can find a nice boy to dance with her. I should think you'd want to make her feel good. Why don't you see that your sister has a boy to attend her?"

"Aw, why can't she get a boy for herself? I can't ask the fellows to please for my sake dance with my sister, can I? I don't have to tell them she's a dead one, do I? And I don't want to be bothered with her either, if it comes to that."

"You're selfish. Here's your sister crying in her room and you don't care. The whole lot of you are as mean as you can be."

society is in a hurry and pushes her into a group who have developed. She is made to feel herself inferior, and the saddest part of the mistake is that she is likely to believe herself inferior and withdraw into herself and suffer more and more as time passes.

Boys and girls who are not sufficiently developed along the sex lines ought not to be made to feel themselves lacking. They should be told that they have time to grow, that they are going to grow; that next year, or a couple of years from now, they will be different, will look different and feel different.

Then they should be headed toward activities their stage of development can meet adequately. Tap dancing, curhythmics, dramatics, club activities, are fine for such children. They gather in mixed groups and do the things they can

Reader Asks Advice About Short Nails

BY ELSIE PIERCE

Short Nails—No Moons
Stella D.: You say you are unhappy about your hands because while you manage to keep them soft and smooth, the nails are short and stubby and you have no moons. That certainly isn't enough to feel "unhappy" about. In the first place, the moons may suddenly put in a surprise appearance if you will make it a habit to push the cuticle back with a tool after every washing. Even if they don't, it doesn't matter—because a clever manicurist can outline the shape of a moon at the base of the nails. You may bring the nail polish out to the end of the nail, using a clear, medium shade instead of a very dark one. No, I do not believe that the entire nail should be covered. The "moon" should be left free. While it is true that the nail is dead, horny tissue, there's life at the base of the nail. Avoid injuring the nail bed, leave it free to breathe so that the new portion of nail growing out will be sturdy and healthy. My bulletins on the Home Manicure and General Hand Care may be had for a self-addressed, stamped (3-cent) envelope.

U. C.: It isn't often that we get a complaint about eyebrows being too thin. However, since you say that your brows were tweezed too thin and now seem slow in growing out, I suggest that you massage them every night before retiring with a little cream (emollient cream) or with a ready-prepared eyelash grower. There are some excellent preparations on the market for this purpose. Brush the brows first in the direction opposite to the growth of the hair, then in the growth direction. When applying your make-up go over the brow outline with a pencil. Avoid leaving a hard line. Blend with finger to give the brows a natural look. If you carry the pencil coloring out beyond the actual line of the brows this should make your brows appear a little heavier.

H. C.: You are right in wishing to dramatize the lovely contrast between your gardenia skin and dark, dark hair. If you can leave rouge off entirely without looking pallid, us a bright lipstick, emphasize your eyes. I think you will achieve a beautiful make-up. Yes, even with black I would leave rouge off if I were you.

My complete new booklet "Reduce by Diet" (Booklet 201) is yours for ten cents. It covers the subject thoroughly. Send for it, giving your name and full address to The Bell Library, care of this newspaper, 247 West 43rd Street, New York, N. Y.

Old Gardener Says:

BY E. I. FARRINGTON

The Mexican bean beetle has become a serious pest in many gardens. The safest and best materials to use in its control are commercially prepared dusts and sprays. There are a number on the market, and the directions on the container should be followed. Where the bean beetle is abundant, two applications of the spray or dust will be necessary on early beans and three on late beans. Another spray, which can be used to control the beetles before the beans have set is magnesium arsenate, but, because of the danger of a poisonous residue, it should not be used after the beans have formed. It is wisest for the home gardener to use the prepared dust or spray throughout the season.

Over-Sensitive Person Just Vain and Selfish

BY DOROTHY DIX

"Slight hound," the woman who is a combination of jealousy, egotism and self-pity and who is always seeing insults in everything that is done and said unless she has the center of the stage and the spotlight turned upon her. May I add a few case histories that have come under my observation:

Case 1. Mrs. A. sent a list of the slights she had received to her husband's family that covered twenty years, and that enumerated each and every occasion on which she considered that she had been slighted. One incident was that her mother-in-law had taken her to the theater, the seats were in the balcony. Another grievous insult was offered by her sister-in-law who presented her with a new coat. At the time she was much pleased, but months later she decided that this was a criticism of her clothes, so another slight was added to her life's list.

Case 2. Mrs. B., who considers she is slighted if you do not inquire minutely after her health every time you see her. Case 3. Mrs. C., who is insulted if she isn't invited to every party or tea you give. Case 4. Mrs. D., who is insulted if she isn't given precedence over every one else on your committee.

And so on and so on. There are millions of variations on the theme. If these overgrown, spoiled babies who turn on their tear ducts with out reason and expect everybody to spend their lives petting them and apologizing for hurting them and precious feelings were given something to cry for, it would do them a lot of good. Don't you think so?

E. D. G.

Answer: Indeed I do. There is nothing on earth that makes me quite so tired as these sensitive souls who keep every one who knows them walking on eggs for fear of unwittingly saying or doing something that will offend them. They are nothing but bundles of selfishness and vanity who deserve to be kicked instead of sympathized with.

In one of Sable's stories there is an old priest who, when told of the wrong that some one has done, always replies: "May God forgive you and me, my brother, for that man's sin." To a degree, this is true. We are responsible, more or less, for the faults and weaknesses of those with whom we live, because we could make them behave and we don't do it. We let them get away with the things that not only ruin our happiness but also wreck theirs.

We let selfish people impose upon us because we are too weak and cowardly to stand up for our own rights. We let high-tempered people insult us because we don't resent it.

We let tyrants rule us and naggers nag us because we don't stage a rebellion. We spend our lives waiting on lazy people and slaving for them because we haven't the nerve to say: "If you won't work, then neither shall you eat."

And we encourage the sensitive to become more and more thin-skinned and more and more wounded by handling them with velvet gloves, coddling them and apologizing all over the place when they burst into tears, or go off into the silence because of something they have regarded as a slight.

What we should do is to make them snap out of it by ridiculing them and showing them what fools they are of themselves, and not even noticing when they dissolve in tears over some fancied grievance. Treat 'em rough is the remedy for the "slight hounds."

Dear Dorothy Dix—Is there no way to touch the hearts or appeal to the reason of wives who have come between mothers and sons? I am the victim of a cruel and jealous wife who, for no reason at all, makes life miserable by demanding that I ignore my mother completely. For the sake of peace I have done as she desires, but I feel that I am a cad and have come to the place where I can stand it no longer. My mother is a sweet woman and it has broken my heart to act as I have done toward her, for she has done everything for me that a mother could do for a son and my conduct has made her miserable. Why is it that wives so often try to alienate their husbands from their mothers? They love their own mothers, invite them to their homes, want their husbands to make their mothers welcome and show them a good time, but they expect their husbands to forget that they ever had mothers. Well, here's one son who is going back to his mother and who is trying to be a good son to her, and who hopes she will forgive him for being such a

HENPECKED BOOB.

Answer: Woman's ruling passion is possessiveness and that is the reason that so many wives try to alienate their husbands from their mothers. They can't bear to think there ever was another woman in their husbands' lives, even if that woman is his mother. It makes them furious to know that their husbands are bound to their mothers by ties of love and gratitude that are the growth of years; that their husbands and their mothers have memories and associations of which they know nothing; that their husbands have the lifelong habit of going to their mothers with their confidence.

and for counsel, and that every man's mother is in a way his ideal.

Nor has she the wisdom to know that she has taken the surest way to kill her husband's affection for her. For while, through weakness and for the sake of peace, he may give in to her, in his heart he resents her tyranny and her unreason. And his conscience never ceases to reproach him for what he knows is a dastardly deed in turning from the mother who bore him.

DOROTHY DIX.

GOOD TASTE TODAY

KINDNESS TO THOSE WHO WORK FOR US

Dear Mrs. Post: My husband recently transferred an employee from an out of town office to his office here, and it so happens that this family has moved within several blocks of our house. Do you think that I should go to see his wife?

Answer: I can't answer definitely as to whether a visit would be expected of you, because so much depends upon your husband's and this employee's personal relationship. But in any case it would seem to me no more than a natural courtesy on your part to go to see his wife and to find out if you can do anything about helping her get settled and to feel at home in her new surroundings. In other words, even though any ultimate friendship would necessarily depend upon your liking for each other and the interests you have in common, a gesture of kindness is never amiss.

Dear Mrs. Post: I am for the first time in my life earning my living. As I was left a widow recently and at an age when I can no longer turn to learning anything new, I have taken a position as companion. I took it thinking that I was at least to be considered a lady and would be treated as such. We travel a great deal, and naturally meet many new people, and conversations might be most pleasant if every time I did not find myself on the outside. No matter how friendly others show themselves to be toward me, my employer always begins her sentences with "I," "I did this" and "I did that" or "I spent last month doing this" never a "we" does she say to include me. And yet actually we did those things together. Is a companion supposed to be treated as a piece of furniture? I have many times attempted to leave when she meets or receives other people, but she always insists that I remain.

Answer: As you describe your employer's discourtesy, I can only answer that her manners are abominable. At the same time it is more than probable that she has no awareness of her discourtesy but that she is merely one of the unconscious egotists who seem to have no pronoun in their vocabulary other than that of the first person singular. If you will take the trouble to look for it, you will almost certainly find this trait in many others. It is not all uncommon to find one member of a family—even a husband or a wife—who has this same unconscious habit of speaking to become more and more thin-skinned and more and more wounded by handling them with velvet gloves, coddling them and apologizing all over the place when they burst into tears, or go off into the silence because of something they have regarded as a slight. What we should do is to make them snap out of it by ridiculing them and showing them what fools they are of themselves, and not even noticing when they dissolve in tears over some fancied grievance. Treat 'em rough is the remedy for the "slight hounds."

MURDER ON THE BLUFF

SYNOPSIS: In one wild, stormy night at Farrington Bluff home of Michael's aunts, beautiful Jude Blinshop is shot to death on the bluff; the Skipper, Mike's tall and tweedy younger aunt, disappears, and Mike dislocates his shoulder in a fall. The Skipper turns up; she's been in the stable with a sick collic. Aunt Martha, stout and prudish, has a few genteel tantrums, but Gay Palmer, Mike's red-headed sweetheart, keeps fairly calm. Next morning we search the grounds for an intruder and find that someone has slept in the room over the garage.

Chapter 11 I BECOME HEAD SLEUTH

I N my room, Michael was sprawled on the bed, waiting. He had managed to get out of the oilskins, but the feet stretched in front of him were still encased in hip boots.

"Well!" he said jerkily.

"Nothing," after a moment's hesitation.

He straightened up to study my face. Whatever he saw there appeared to satisfy him. He stretched out gingerly on the bed.

"I told you so," his voice was tired. "Get me out of this stuff, will you?"

Only once did I speak to him during the long, tedious process of getting the two of us ready for M. Farrington's lunch table. I couldn't stand the tight lines around his mouth.

"Mike," I said, "the Skipper is square. You know it."

He turned away, picking up a comb. When his voice came it was perfectly steady. "I know it."

I didn't try again. With furtive intensity, I concentrated on soap, towels, collar-buttons-- anything. The lunch bell rang while I was struggling with Michael's tie.

M. Farrington-- as with her weight in gold at that lunch table. Right there she made amends for every Farrington estate dinner I have ever enjoyed.

"Well, ear!" and I rose to, after, not quite stayed.

No one argued. Gay was white and shaken. The Skipper, white and cold, Michael silent and motionless. But M. Farrington and I talked about the delectable condition of the drama, if I remember correctly. And when I came out, Gay took it up. No until Higgins withdrew at the end of the meal, was there silence. M. Farrington took a deep breath and plunked in.

"I earnest," she said, "that you are all satisfied that no one is lurking in the grounds?"

No answer.

"Then I think that all the steps we may take, can be taken right here with a little thought and a little cooperation from each one of us."

More silence. Michael's lighter flared.

"I fail to see," he observed, "any necessity for taking steps. There has been an accident. Very well. As soon as we get in touch with the mainland, the police can do everything that is necessary."

We all stared at him. There was that alternative of course. Any sort of story might be bluffed through. William and Higgins were to be counted on. And the police would have no reason to question it. Gay made up her mind first.

"I don't like that, Mike."

"Why not? We might as well face it. The chances are that the person who shot Jude is sitting at this table. Do you think anyone here would shoot her intentionally?"

M. Farrington spoke briskly. "Michael, if you are right, we can end this situation here and now. We are all friends. If one of us was so unfortunate as to-- cause this accident-- that person should speak out now for the sake of all of us."

We waited for an interval that seemed like several centuries. The Skipper sat motionless, her eyes on the table, and her right hand clenched in front of her. M. Farrington, a trifle pale, was studying Michael's face. It was absolutely expressionless, but the hand that held his cigarette shook slightly. Gay's frightened eyes caught and held mine. There was a question in them that puzzled me. M. Farrington's hard, dry voice cut through the silence.

"Very well. The police will be here by tomorrow of the next day at the latest. If we wait for that, things will be very unpleasant. I am of the opinion that an organized investigation will be much happier than an individual and futile one."

It was only common sense. We all realized that, but no one encouraged the idea.

M. Farrington smiled grimly. "At all events, it would be more successful and it might spare us the ordeal of a public police investigation."

"Police?" At Farrington Bluff. But of course there would have to be police. For the first time the matter seemed to be personal. Gay's hand dropped to her knee convulsively.

"Oh, surely!" she began.

"Very surely!" said M. Farrington. "Someone must take charge. I should prefer it to be neither a woman nor a servant. Since Michael has been in the so bathing in February, I am afraid that Michael, I am afraid, will not all be engaged to offer us services."

"What a charming laughter," said M. Farrington, "meaningless gusts of it."

"Well," said M. Farrington's carden voice, "is that an acceptance or otherwise?"

Michael answered for me, eyes narrowed a peculiar expression on his face.

"Just your sleuth, Aunt Martha. He'll love it. An authority on the subject, in fact."

There was something in that remark that I didn't like, and a great deal about the whole proposition that I liked even less. I glared at him.

"Well," impatiently from M. Farrington.

"All right," I said stiffly. I was to trap Jude's murderer. I. And if it should turn out to be-- I didn't dare finish the thought.

"Thank you," pursued M. Farrington dryly. "James, there is, of thing that is necessary."

Neenah Annual Dedicated To William Marsh, Adviser

Neenah—The Rocket, the first Neenah High school yearbook issued since 1926, made its appearance at the school yesterday afternoon. About 200 were distributed and the remainder will be given out Monday afternoon.

A red leather cover, with a silver rocket streaming across the front is consistent with the colors of the 1937 graduating class. Portrait pictures, action shots of athletic contests, pictures of school organizations and miscellaneous snapshots are featured in the book. Photographic equipment for taking and developing their own pictures was purchased by the staff at the beginning of the school year and has been paid for through sale of annual subscriptions.

The following nine sections are included in the 108-page book: Contents, administration, classes, class year, class prophecy, society, school calendar, activities, athletics. The advertising section is interspersed with the main text.

Work Stopped by Union Workers at Kimberly Estate

Neenah—A demonstration at the Jack Kimberly estate, south of Neenah, where the Hutter Construction company, Fond du Lac, is erecting a palatial home marked the beginning of a drive this morning "to unionize the entire Fox river valley," according to Earl Affeldt, business agent for common laborers in Neenah, Menasha, Appleton, Kaukauna and Oshkosh.

About 500 men assembled at the estate and formed picket lines which will be maintained "from now on," Affeldt said. Hutter employees came to work but building operations ceased when the superintendent, Julius Makowski, and the timekeeper, Edward Miller, accompanied a group of union men to the estate and formed picket lines.

Music will be furnished by Matern and his sons, Richard, Eugene, Kenneth and Gerald and by David Jedwabny and Raymond Eskowski.

New London — Gehrke Brothers softball team, a newcomer in the New London city industrial league, defeated the Plywood aggregation 9 to 7 in a game under the lights at the city ball park last night.

The Plywood started with a bang in the first inning while White, Gehrke pitcher, was warming up to the season's first game and walked two batters and allowed two hits for four Plywood runs. "Icky" Folski cleared the bases with a pretty 3-bagger. White knuckled down after that and held the woodworkers scoreless the next three innings, fanned five batters in that time.

Gehrke's popped flies off Servis's offerings all evening and were slow in getting started but counted two runs in the second inning and then gathered four more on two walks and two singles in the third inning to lead 6 and 4. They continued in the lead with two more runs in the fourth and scored another on a double by White in the sixth.

Another Homer

Chester Gutowski hit the second home run of the league season in the fifth inning and boosted the Plywood score to 5 against 8. In the sixth "Coco" Seims pushed two runners across the plate with a nice double to set the score at 9-7 but both teams failed to score in the last inning when each side was downed quickly in a series of pop flies.

On the Gehrke team doubles were knocked by Orin Krohn, Harold Jeffers and R. White. Vernon Burton got one on the Plywood side. Monday evening Gehrke's will meet Bordens in their second tussle.

Swimming Pool At Hatten Park Opens Next Week

Daily Schedule for Bathers Has Been Completed

New London — Unless unforeseen obstacles arise, the new outdoor swimming pool at the Hatten Memorial Park will open to bathers Monday or Tuesday, it was announced yesterday by R. M. Shortell, city recreation director.

The pool was filled to capacity yesterday and given a preliminary examination by the inspector from the state health department. An engineer is expected Monday morning to conduct a test operation of the water filter system and instruct the local engineers after which official recommendation will be made.

All plumbing connections were completed yesterday for operation of the pool except the installation of the chlorinating machine. The work was to be done today. The health inspector also ordered a fence built around the concrete ramp around the pool and a snow fence was secured with his approval.

A 4-foot spring board is expected to be ready for installation Monday morning.

Change Schedule

Ladies' day in the daily swim schedule has been changed from Wednesday afternoon to Thursday when only women and girls above junior high school age will be allowed in the pool. Wednesday afternoon will be open to men and boys and women and girls above senior high school age, as on Friday and Saturday.

Everyone over 15 years of age will be allowed in the pool each evening from 7 to 10 o'clock and on Saturday afternoon all people including children over seven years of age can swim from 1:30 until 6 o'clock. No children under 15 will be allowed in the pool evenings and it will be closed entirely on Sunday morning and evening.

Bathers must bring their own clean swim suits and towels and soap as a shower bath is required before entering the pool. A few suits will be rented for the convenience of visitors. Swimming trunks without shirts will be banned to male bathers, at least in mixed groups.

Improve Tennis Court

The city recreation program will open Monday and all children and youths who have not registered have been asked to report at the school grounds. In the absence of tennis courts elsewhere in the city, a grassy plot of the Washington High school grounds has been laid out for beginners to practice. There is no backstop. Completion of the courts at the Hatten park is still under consideration.

A large bulletin board has been erected on the outside of the Washington school building for the posting of schedules of all leagues, games and contests and all announcements of interest to participants.

Appleton High Repeats as Valley Conference Track Champion

Noses Out East Green Bay Squad; Score Is 56 to 53

Jack Sellers High Point
Man With Two Firsts
And a Third

BY GORDON MCINTYRE
GREEN BAY—Appleton High school track and field team completed playing hog with high school track honors in its division when it annexed the Fox River Valley conference title here Friday night in City Stadium. It was the third title for the Terrors this season, the squad having previously won the Valley relay and the state Class A crown.

The victory also marked the second consecutive year the Terrors have dominated conference track and field meets for it was the second time the squad made a clean sweep of the conference relay title and the track title.

Last night's victory was by a much narrower margin than many folks expected, by the skin of a broad jump and a relay race. Appleton counted 56 points for the evening with Green Bay East second with 53, West third with 43, Oshkosh fourth with 251, Manitowish second with 11 and Fond du Lac sixth with 6.

The meet was an Appleton-East battle all evening and for a long time it looked like East was due to upset the dope. Appleton took the lead in the first event, the 40-yard run, and then added points in the 100 and shot. However, East wiped out the lead in the high hurdles and went ahead on the half mile and retained the lead until the Terrors crashed through with nine points in broad jump and won the relay race to clinch the championship.

NAME 2 CAPTAINS
Karl Bohnsack, pole vaulter and broad jumper, and Ralph Colvin, half miler, were named co-captains of the 1938 Appleton High school track team by members of the squad last night. They succeeded Jack Sellers.

Letter awards announced by Coach Joseph Shields were to Kay Rogers, Anthony Geraden, Ralph Colvin, George Swamp, Emerson Jury, Jack Sellers, Fred Oliver, Leonard Witter, Don Sadler, Howie Bixby, Glenn Bowers, Ken Slattery, Floyd Meyers, Don Rohloff, Karl Bohnsack, Vincent Jones and Sonny Fitz. Robert Hoolihan was awarded a managers' letter.

Sellers High Point Man
Jack Sellers, who's tops when the chips are down, again led the Terrors in points with 11 in the 400, and long hurdles and third in the broad jump besides running on the relay squad. Howie Bixby crashed through with first in the two dashes and ran in the relay. Appleton won six firsts and the relay race while Green Bay East had three firsts and West, Oshkosh and Manitowish one each. The Terrors had their greatest difficulty acquiring second and third place points although several lads who did score among the also rans pleased Coach Joseph Shields highly. On the debit side of the ledger, however, he had several disappointments.

Although the meet was advertised as one in which almost every record was in danger, only one was broken. A sponge track kept the tracksters from making any more than ordinary time while the broad jump runway was so sticky it couldn't be used. The new record in the pole vault where Emmett Rickaby bettered his old mark by clearing 11 feet, 9 inches. His old mark was 11 feet 6 1/2 inches.

The events and the scoring went something like this:
440-yard run—Jack Sellers won the quarter mile for Appleton in 52 seconds and wasn't even pushed. He swept into first place as the runners reached the straightaway on the back stretch and then set his own pace to the tape far in front of Fredrickson, East, who was second. Patzke, West, was third. Lyons, Oshkosh, fourth and Mesner, Fond du Lac, fifth. Appleton also entered Fredrickson, who placed out of the money as did Glen Bowers.

Bixby Cops Century
100—Howie Bixby finished first in the century with 10:05. Oshkosh, right behind him. Bixby's time was 10:05 seconds. Lorebladt, East, was third. Klushecky, West, fourth and Sadler, Appleton, fifth. Sadler finished first in his heat but the competition was pretty keen in the final and he wasn't in the best of health, anyway.

Shel—Vincent Jones showed the shot 50 feet, 6 inches for first place but left undisturbed his record of two weeks ago at the relays. Tornew, West, took second. Messenger, East, third. Slattery, Appleton, fourth, and Weber, Manitowish, fifth. Heenitz was the other Appleton entry but failed to qualify. With the three events reported Appleton led the field with 18 points. East had 10 and West 9.

Half mile run—McCartin, East's great half miler, won the race with Thomas, West, second and Colvin, Appleton, third. Jungwirth, Oshkosh, was fourth and Bidwell, West, fifth. The time was 2 minutes, 7.5 seconds. Colvin ran a nice race for the Terrors. He remained back in the field the first time around and

Art Wakeman Gets A Perfect Ace at North Shore Course

There are holes-in-one in golf and there are holes-in-one but Art Wakeman, Appleton, can claim an ace that is perfect shooting in all sense of the word; in fact his ace was a perfect bullseye.

Wakeman scored yesterday afternoon on the 36-ward, No. 4 hole at North Shore course when he drove off the tee with a No. 4 iron and laid the ball down right in the cup between the pin and the can. Wakeman, who is general manager of the Fox River Paper company, was catching up with another group of paper mill executives shooting at North Shore yesterday when he counted his shot.

Walker Regains Batting Lead in American League

Ducky Medwick Holds
Onto National Loop Honors
Adding 6 More Hits

NEW YORK—Gerry Walker of Detroit regained the American league batting lead this week, and Ducky Medwick of the Cardinals held onto the National league pace, but five other clouters played a considerably larger part in making life miserable for hopeful hurlers.

Chief of these was the iron horse, Lou Gehrig, who bombarded opposition pitching for 16 hits in 28 chances during the week ended yesterday's games, reaching third place in the American league, with an average of .382.

Walker, climbing from fourth to the top, replacing Joe Cronin of the Red Sox, collected 17 hits in 38 times up to boost his mark to .389. Medwick managed only six hits in 21 chances, but his average of .408 for the season was still tops in the National league by 35 points over his nearest rival.

In addition to Gehrig, the heavy-hitters for the week were Hank Greenberg, Detroit, 15 hits in 31 chances for a .376 average and fourth place in the American league; Arky Vaughan of the Pirates, who took over second in the National league with .373, a 23-point increase; Billy Herman, Chicago, fifth in the National league, climbing 44 points to .361, and Tony Cuccinello, Boston Bees, advancing 27 points to .341 for eighth in the National league.

Net Stars Sail to England for Match

Walter Pate Heads United States Contenders for International Honors

NEW YORK—Led by non-playing Captain Walter L. Pate, who also is chairman of the Davis cup committee, the United States cup contenders sailed for England today aboard the liner Columbus.

Handy victors over Japan and Australia in North American zone tests, they carried with them high hopes of defeating the European zone winner, probably Germany, advancing thereby to the challenge round, and then whipping England to return the international tennis trophy to this country for the first time since 1927.

Four of the players who sailed have had varying shares in advancing the U. S. cause to this point. They are Red-Haired Don Budge, National champion and victor in his four singles engagements; Blond Gene Mako, Budge's partner in two doubles triumphs; Frank Parker, who teamed successfully with Budge in singles against Japan, and Bryan "Bixby" Grant, the mighty little man from Atlanta who did equally well as Budge's running mate against Australia.

The lone newcomer was 21-year-old Wayne Saban, like Budge and Mako, a Californian.

Alice Marble Again
Defeated in Finals
London—For the third successive year, Alice Marble, United States champion, was defeated in the final round of a British tennis tournament today.

The San Francisco girl bowed to Jadwiga Jedzejewska of Poland, 3-6, 6-4, 6-2, in the final round of the St. George hill tournament. The Polish girl recently defeated Helen Jacobs, former American champion, in the French hard court tournament at Paris.

Miss Marble was beaten May 22 in the finals of the Surrey championships by Freda James of England. On May 22 she was defeated by Anita Larns of Chile in the final round of the Middlesex championships.

Indiana Takes First Honors at Central Tourney

Led by Don Lash With Two
New Records, Hoosiers
Count 39 Points

BY WILLIAM WEEKES
MILWAUKEE—(AP)—The Big Ten is still grabbing the honors at the Central Intercollegiate conference's track and field parties.

Last night, under the floodlights in Marquette University's stadium, Indiana's Hoosiers, led by matchless Don Lash, won their second straight C. I. C. championship, their third since they started competing in the event, along with making it four straight titles for the Big Ten—the organization that caused the founding of the central group.

The C. I. C. was organized 12 years ago by the late Knute Rockne of Notre Dame, Ralph Young of Michigan State College, and Conrad M. Jennings of Marquette, after the Big Ten decided to make its own championship track and field meet a closed affair. Notre Dame won the first title, in 1926, Michigan State and Marquette followed, then the Irish took three in a row before Marquette won another. The Pittsburgh Kansas Teachers won in 1933, but since then, it has been all Big Ten, with Ohio State and Jesse Owens the victors in 1934.

Lash bowed himself out of collegiate competition as far as operations in the midwest are concerned by slaking the C. I. C. to new records in the mile and two mile runs. Dynamic finishing drives gave him victories in the mile in 4 minutes, 13.4 seconds, over Wisconsin's Chuck Fenske, and in the longer race at 9:13.3. His mile mark replaced the 4:14.1 by Ray Sears of Butler, in 1933, while his two-mile knocked five seconds off the old record of 9:18.3 by Billy Zepp of Michigan Normal, in 1935.

Lash's Wins Big Items
Lash's victories were the big items in Indiana's roundup of 39 points, 10 better than Illinois' second place total. Notre Dame was third with 28, Michigan State had 21, Iowa 19, and Marquette 16.

The great Hoosier star's "double" was the prize performance of a meet which produced two other meet marks. Allan Tolmich, wiry hurdler and sprinter from Wayne University, Detroit, won the 220-yard lows in 23.4 seconds, three-tenths of a second faster than the old standard, and Bill Hawthorne of Michigan Normal, and Al Haller of Wisconsin, shared the other one by clearing 13 feet, 9 1/2 inches in the pole vault.

Bob Grieve, Illinois' little sprint star, and big William (Bud) Faymonville of Notre Dame, also achieved "doubles." The Illinois sprinter won the 100-yard dash in 9.8 seconds, and the 220-yard event in 21.7, while Faymonville won the shot put and discus throw. The Irish sophomore did 46 feet, 10 1/2 inches with the former missile, and 145 feet, 13 inches in the discus.

Pollard, Jr., North Dakota Negro who landed third for the United States in the Olympic high hurdles a year ago, returned to action after being held back all season by a leg injury, and scored a son by a leg injury, and scored a well-earned victory over Tolmich in the fair time of 14.8 seconds.

Mel Trutt, winner of the half mile in 1:55.6, and Malcolm Hicks, who took the 440-yard run in 49.7 seconds, added to Indiana's point-total, and Eddie Burke, Marquette's sensational Negro high-jumper, won a first place for the host school with a leap of 6 feet, 5 inches.

TO THE VICTORS BELONG—

Here are two pictures that tell considerable about Appleton's track victory last night at City Stadium, Green Bay, when the Terrors nosed out East Green Bay, 56 to 53, for the conference championship. It was the third title the Terrors won this season.

In the upper picture are Jack Sellers, the Terror track captain and high point winner last night, Hap Hoolihan, the squad's manager with his sweater decorated with some of the ribbons the boys won last night and holding the championship trophy, and Coach Joseph Shields. The picture was taken just after the relay race had been run, the outcome of the meet announced. The trio was surrounded by an admiring throng of Green Bay youngsters and Appleton fans.

The picture at the right is the finish of the relay race and shows Howie Bixby, breasting the tape and closing his eyes in anticipation of the flashlight on the photographer's camera. Previous to the relay race the Terrors led the field by a point but when they won first and Green Bay East finished third, the victory was by a 56 to 53 margin. Bixby also won first in the 100-yard dash and in the 220-yard dash.

The Terrors opened the meet by scoring a first in the 440-yard run and then adding points in the 100 and the shot. About that time East swung into action with eight points in the high hurdles while Appleton was getting only one and the lead wilted and passed when East took a first in the half mile. Thereafter the Red Devils were in the van and as some of the Terrors failed to collect expected points things took on a dark outlook.

Nine points in the broad jump where Appleton placed first, third and fifth put the Terrors back in the running and then Slattery tied for second and third in the high jump and the team went out in front by a point. The relay followed and closed the meet with Appleton winning. (Post-Crescent Photos)

Inverness Gets Bad Shellacking

16 Leading Professionals
Have 141 Birdies,
1 Eagle

Toledo, O.—A thoroughly whipped Inverness golf course was ready today for another shellacking at the hands of 16 leading professionals who, with 141 birdies and one eagle, chalked up in the first three rounds, neared the halfway mark in the third annual best ball team play tourney.

The par-breaking barrage started Tuesday when 48 birdies were registered as the professional mashie swimmers scrambled for $4,600 in prize money. Yesterday's morning 48 birdies and an eagle went into the records, and during the rainy afternoon, 47 more sub-par performances were hung up.

Today the leading Harry Cooper-Horton Smith combine was the target of two top-notch two-somes, and scrambled standings were certain to result. Cooper and Smith, who chopped 10 strokes off par yesterday as they trounced Denny Shute and Lawson Little, by six up, had a rating of "plus five" as they went into today's play.

Under the Inverness scoring system a team gets a plus or minus rating equal to the number of holes it is "up" or "down" at the end of each match. The scores are tallied at the end of each day.

Ralph Gulda and Sammy Sneed were in second place with plus 3, while other scores were: Tommy Armour and Jimmy Thomson, plus 2; Henry Picard and Johnny Revolta, plus 1; Olin Dutra and Gene Sarazen, even; Shute and Little, minus 3; Paul Runyan and Ky Laffoon, minus 3; and Ray Mangrum and Johnny Hines, minus 5.

Allan Fraser Wins School Championship

By scoring 2071 points, Allan Fraser won the Wilson Junior High school intramural championship this year. Ray Monteth, athletic director, announced today. Ray Brash was second with 256 points while Bob Koehnke took third place with 248 points. Other high scorers were Tom Reider 2181, Henry Grunhaug 203, Earl Wenzel 194.

Fraser scored his points as follows: football 181, captain of various teams 30, tug-of-war 20, dodgeball 17, basketball 17, volleyball 20, free throwing 13, goal shooting 18, swimming 12, golf and archery 7, tennis 30, horse shoe pitching 39, softball 17, track and field 12.

Red Kress Makes One More Bid for Big Time Baseball

Leads American Association
in Hits, Homers,
Two Base Clouts

CHICAGO—(AP)—Ralph (Red) Kress, a familiar figure in the major leagues for several years, is making a great bid for another chance in baseball's "big time."

American association records released here today and which include day games of Thursday show that Kress led in three departments. He had driven in 49 runs to pace the entire circuit and his 14 doubles had given him a tie for the lead in the two-base hit race. He had hit 11 homers, the best mark in the circuit, and his healthy .342 batting average was good enough for ninth place in the chase for the hitting title.

At the top of the heap for efficiency at the plate was slugging Johnny Rizzo of Columbus, who had an average of .409 for 42 games, 17 points under his mark for the previous week. In second place was Boyle of Kansas City, with a mark of .384, while Gil English, the Kansas City second sacker, was in third spot with a .361 average, three points above Oscar Eckhardt, the Indianapolis fly chaser.

Reynolds had made the most hits, 68, and his 115 total bases led that department. Minneapolis continued to lead the team batting race, with its mark of .313 representing no change from a 212 average. Milwaukee was out in front in the team fielding department, with an average of .979.

In the race for pitching honors, Jim Peterson of Louisville had won three and lost none and Lanier of Columbus won two and has been unbeaten, as has Gibbs of Kansas City. Max Macos of Columbus, however, led in total games won, having nine victories to his credit, against two defeats. Cox of St. Paul and Zuber of Milwaukee each won five and lost one.

The Eagles scored six runs in the first two frames to take a 6 to 2 lead. Each team scored a run in the fourth and in the fifth the Knights counted six times to set into the game. The last three frames saw both teams score markers as the lead changed hands often. Then came Bleier's double and the end of the game.

Pittsburgh Is Defeated Again By Boston's Bees

Lead Cut to Single Game; Chicago Cubs Chase Hubbell

Associated Press Sports Writer
IT'S time for "Doc" Pie Traynor to get out the needle again and give his Pirates another shot in the arm.

If he doesn't soon repeat the injection that sent the Bucs off to the wars successfully in the first month of the baseball season, Medicine-Man Traynor is going to find his Pittsburgh falling asleep on him, as usual.

For three or four seasons, the Pirates have been close to the answer to a manager's dream—on paper—but somehow they always wound up as more or less of a nightmare. There's a lot of answers, but the one that holds the most weight is that the Bucs never seem able to get into high gear and stay there.

This season they were supposed to be even better equipped, particularly in a strengthened pitching staff and a line-up boasting the two league batting champions. And they got away in front, sporting a four-game lead at one stage of the early weeks.

But in recent days, they've been showing unmistakable signs of going back to their bad habits. In their last 17 games, they've played under .500 ball, and have taken only one series in seven. Their latest flop has been against the supposedly stingless Bees in Boston. After losing to one of the Bees' "old man" rookies, Lou Fette, on Thursday, they did the same thing against another, Jim Turner, yesterday, walking their own plank with five hits, and dropping off to defeat 9-1.

Lead Only One Game
As a result, their lead was cut to one slim game over the Giants, and a game and a half over the Chicago Cubs. Both of these outfits, coming along nicely after slow starts, picked up ground yesterday by splitting a doubleheader.

In the opener, Carl Hubbell, making his first start since Brooklyn ended his 24-game win streak, pitched a 6-5 win in 11 frames. In the nightcap, Clyde Castelman ended the Cub streak at eight straight, pitching a 4-2 win.

The New York Yankees' American league lead was cut to two games as the Indians topped the world champions for the second straight day, 5-3. The Tigers banded out 14 hits and walked Washington 10-3. The Athletics and St. Louis Browns broke even in two teeming halves of a doubleheader, the Browns winning 7-6 and then losing 4-3.

Celebrating Dizzy Dean's reinstatement, the Cardinals clubbed the Dodgers 14-4 with an 18-hit attack. Cincinnati and Philadelphia put on a free-swinging battle, which went to the Red Sox 9-8. The Red Sox and White Sox were rained out.

Show Lowest Cost Complete Trailer; Tell Rental Plan

House Trailer Company Announces Special Showing Here Tomorrow

Tomorrow, Sunday, June 6, marks the first showing of the world's lowest priced complete trailer. The showing, held by the House Trailer company, will take place in the company's showgrounds — the Buth Parking lot, directly behind the Y. M. C. A., at the northeast corner of Appleton and Lawrence streets.

The trailer, a product of Schult Trailers, Inc., is a fully-equipped affair, with regular Schult features including innerspring mattresses and sleeping accommodations for four people, a heating stove, cooking stove, curtains, screen door, bumper, lacrtex leatherette exterior, full insulation, running water, and full quality U. S. Royal tires.

Yet, with all these advantages, this ideal camping, fishing, hunting and vacation trailer sells for only $390. It is expected to attract hundreds of visitors to the House Trailer showgrounds.

The company also offers, for immediate delivery, the line of Schult trailers, priced from $551 to $804 and can, within four days, deliver any of the entire Schult line priced from $275 to $1385, f. o. b. factory.

As a companion line of trailers, the House Trailer company also offers the famous Vagabond Coach, "The King of the Highway." Included among its important features are construction equal to the world's finest trailers; washable, water-proof, cream colored lacille interior walls; oil-tempered Masonite pressed wood exterior walls covered with five coats of sprayed enamel; stream-lined design with hutch for backward or forward pulling; reinforced steel chassis, and metal roof bows.

All Vagabond Coaches are fully insulated and are available in four different color choices and three different interior finishes. Full equipment is included on all models and includes every feature from nine windows, copper screens, and large wardrobes to buzzer to power car and plated brass hardware. Cedar lined wardrobes and other features are contained in the deluxe models. Prices for the Vagabond coaches range from $785 to $1195, f. o. b. factory.

Available also in the House Trailer company's line is a 22 foot trailer, ideal for commercial use, or, orchestras, display coaches, etc., that sells for less than $1,000 delivered fully equipped with brakes.

For those who prefer to "try out" a trailer on their 1937 vacations, the House Trailer company offers for rent a Schult trailer completely furnished (except for linens, bedding and dishes) for $5 a day, or $25 a week, with a minimum rental of $10. Should the renter of a House Trailer company coach decide, within 60 days, to buy a trailer of his own, the full amount of the rental can be applied to the purchase price.

LAPPEN CLAIMS SERVICES AID SAFETY

Declaring that clean windshields, windows and headlights and properly inflated tires are important factors in reducing traffic accidents by giving the motorist clearer vision and safer traction, John Lappen, sheriff of Outagamie county, yesterday joined other motorists in checking the services rendered the public by gasoline stations. The Standard Oil Company of Indiana is offering $10,000 in awards for the best reports submitted before June 15th. Mr. Lappen is shown receiving his survey report card from Al Welch, who conducts a service station at Lawe street and Wisconsin avenue. Busy cleaning the windshield is Herbert Stoffel, an attendant at the station.

Berliner Is Beer to Take Along on Picnics and for All Summer Affairs

Picnicking is very evident these days and the parks and picnic grounds are crowded with people who like to get away from the house for a few hours and enjoy a meal in the open air and to "get off" one of the items which will be included in any up-to-the-minute picnic is Berliner beer because this is a most essential item for your picnic lunch to refresh you on these hot summer days. Berliner beer will live up any kind of get-together whether it be one out-of-doors or an indoors party and the reason why it is popular is because it has such a delightful flavor and it is invigorating and refreshing.

If you have not already tried this delightful beer, be sure to order some now for your family use and give your friends as well as yourself a real treat. Its many fine qualities and delicious taste will make you decide that Berliner beer is the beer for all occasions. You can reach the local distributors' headquarters by calling 4626, Fred W. Kibbie at 113 S. State street.

Berliner beer is brewed and bottled by the Berlin Brewing Company at Berlin, Wisconsin. The brewery is located at the head of the Fox river and 90 per cent of this beer is sold in the valley. It is popular with all who have tasted it just once, so say lovers of this beer, and they say that this popularity of Berliner beer is not the result of accident but rather as the brewer's reward for producing a fine-tasting beer with an excellent flavor.

Plan Grading and Surfacing Job on Part of Highway

Surveys Completed and Grade Lines Already Established

Manawa—Construction work on Highway 54 will start in the near future, according to Charles W. Larson, highway commissioner for Waupaca county. The big job this year will include both grading and surfacing of this highway between Royalton and the intersection with 22, four miles south of Manawa. Bids were received for these jobs, low bidders being Frank Mahuda on grading for $28,747 and Robert M. Grollmus on surfacing of $3,782.76. Surveys have been completed and grade lines are already established, and work on this remaining gap of the highway will start about the middle of June, it is expected.

During the period of construction, traffic will detour over County trunk T to the intersection with 22 near the county poor farm and thence south of 54. This road will be closed.

It has also been announced that 54 between Northport and Royalton will be closed soon, but it is not likely that any permanent surfacing will be considered until the entire roadway is graded and surfaced and a new bridge can be secured at Royalton. This bridge with its deep dip on both approaches and narrow roadway is inadequate for present day traffic and must be replaced before the entire program on 54 can be considered finished.

Hoffmann Bakery Saves Work When Weather Is Torrid

Make Your Meals More Interesting With Variety Of Baked Goods

With warm weather come many discomforts and especially to the housewives who have to spend so many hours of each day in the kitchen, working over the hot stove in order to furnish the family with nourishing, healthful, and tasty foods. Wise housewives have found out that it is a waste of time and effort as many local housewives say, to spend long hours in the kitchen in order to fill the baking needs of the family when you can get anything you need in the bakery line from the Hoffmann Puritan Bakery, located at 423 W. College avenue. They are right in the belief, especially during the hot summer days when baking becomes anything short of drudgery and ceases to bring much satisfaction and ceases to be a real treat.

Hoffmann's Bakery features over 27 different kinds of bread at all times and it is considered to be bread which is tastier and better-baked in many respects than even the best of home baking. You can also depend on this baking firm to furnish you with most any variety of hard and sweet rolls, delicious cakes, cookies, doughnuts, all fresh from the oven and merrily good. In addition, any special occasion need is aptly taken care of with Hoffmann's supplying you on request with whatever you need in the bakery line.

The problem of making your meals more interesting and looked-forward-to is, of course, solved when you shop at Hoffmann's, purely because of the great variety of baked goods and its unquestionable goodness.

Treat Drivers as Guests in Home to Reduce Accidents

Hardware Mutual Representatives Outline Safety Principles

According to B. J. Krautkramer, local manager of the Hardware Mutual Casualty Company and D. R. Morrissey, local representative, it is every motorist's duty to be courteous to other drivers he meets on the road as he is to guests in his home. As proof of this, they point out that the majority of accidents are a direct result of too much speed, of being on the wrong side of the road, and other traffic violations.

In other words, automobile accidents are caused by drivers more intent on their own desire for haste than in their consideration for the rights of others.

Morris, Krautkramer and Morrissey's company has made this need for more courtesy the theme of a new safety appeal. The title of "The New Chivalry—Courtesy While Motoring" is used to introduce pleas to motorists to make the Golden Rule their driving creed—and be safe drivers.
